President Says Coal Strike Approaches Action Against U. S.; Questions Royalties

City Sewage Plant Might Be Ready In Fall, Engineer Says; Began 1941

Arrest of Youths Solves Burglaries, Police Chief Says

Albert Lewis and Ronald Van Steenburgh Are Held for Action of Grand Jury

The keen eye of Detective Wesley J. Cramer, on duty Wednesday afternoon on North Front street, was responsible for the clearing up of recent burglaries in Kingston as well as in the town of Esopus. County Investigator Clayton W. Vredenburg said today.

Detective Cramer was on duty in the uptown section of the city Wednesday when he observed Albert Lewis, 20, of 7 West Pierpont street come out of a second hand store. On investigating he found the young man had just sold a quantity of expensive silverware. Suspicious of the transaction, Detective Cramer called headquarters and asked that Lewis be picked up. Captain Frederick Stoudt left headquarters and picked up Lewis on Broadway.

At police headquarters it was learned on questioning Lewis that the merchandise sold at the uptown store had been taken from the home of Miss Emily S. Burnett in Sleighsburg. At headquarters Lewis also implicated Ronald G. Van Steenburgh, 16, of 6 Hanratty street and Van Steenburgh was brought in for questioning.

When it was learned that the silverware had been taken from the Sleighsburg premises Chief Ernest A. Boss called Sheriff George C. Smith and the two were turned over to Sheriff Smith. Further investigation and questioning disclosed that not only silverware but clothing and a large valuable clock had been taken. The merchandise it was stated was worth at least $250.

Both men admitted being implicated in the Burnett home entrance. County Investigator Vredenburg said.

During the investigation which was made by Chief Boss, Captain Stoudt, Detective Cramer, Sheriff Smith, County Investigator Vredenburg and Deputy Sheriff Leonard Ellsworth, it was discovered that the two defendants knew something about other jobs.

Tolls of Entrance
County Investigator Vredenburg said the two admitted that they had entered the old Tucker Hotel at Sleighsburg where entrance was gained by entering through an open window. Brass

Schultz Retires As Taxi Operator

Delaware Avenue Man Concludes 26 Years of Service to Public

Jacob C. Schultz of 599 Delaware avenue, is retiring from the taxi business in Kingston this evening, when he plans to turn the business over to the men who have been driving his taxicabs.

"It will be a sort of joint ownership among the chauffeurs; each one will buy his own taxi, and I will lease them the office on Delaware avenue."

Mr. Schultz said that Patrick McDonough who has been driving one of the Schultz taxicabs for 14 years, will be the head of the organization.

Churchill Offers 'States' Proposal

London, May 9 (P)—Winston Churchill, in an address to the Dutch Parliament, called today for a United States of Europe. His address was broadcast by the Netherlands radio at Hilversum.

"I see no reason," he declared, "why under the guardianship of a world organization there should not arise the United States of Europe, both of the east and of the west, which will unify this continent in a manner never known since the Roman empire."

"It will give you prosperity, justice and peace."

His statement evoked long applause.

Memorial Day Plans Progressing; Rites on Program

Chairman Clayton Asks Organizations Take Part in Observance and Parade

Plans for Kingston's first post-war Memorial Day observance and parade are progressing satisfactorily, Lt. Col. Harold V. Clayton, chairman of the Parade Committee, said today.

Although various local organizations already have been contacted regarding participation in the parade, Chairman Clayton, who served in Europe with the 4th Division, said it would be impossible to reach everyone. In a letter to The Freeman he urges all organizations, societies or drum corps interested in participating to communicate with him.

Early plans envisage the largest Memorial Day parade in the history of the city. The American Legion, together with its various auxiliaries, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Marine Corps League, will participate in heavy numbers.

The Marine Corps League will parade in full uniform and will feature a rifle and drill team, according to plans announced to the parade committee.

Various Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, fire companies already have applied for a place in line.

Two Out-of-Town Groups Listed
Two large out-of-town musical organizations are scheduled to parade. The 52-piece all-girl drum corps of the Newburgh Veterans of Foreign Wars and the fire and drum corps of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel are the leading out of town outfits signed to date.

Local musical aggregations include the Kingston High School Band, the familiar Port Ewen Drum Corps and a local musicians union band. This will mark the first time that a union band has appeared in such a parade.

The parade lineup will be announced about May 20, Mr. Clayton said.

Concerts Sell-Out Seems Assured; Stars Are Signed

Previous Seasons Are Four Times Behind Present Ticket Demand, Is Report

With four times as many memberships reported at noon today than on the comparative date in any former campaign, the Kingston Community Concerts Association feels practically assured of a sell-out for the fall and winter season. Memberships, which must be registered by Saturday night, entitle the holder to attend the three concerts of the series.

Campaign headquarters at the Governor Clinton Hotel will remain open evenings until 9 o'clock starting tonight. All those who are planning to join the association are urged to do so immediately in order to be included with next season's concert goers. No single admissions will be sold to any concert.

Artists for the three concerts will be the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Hans Kindler; Christopher Lynch, young Irish tenor; and Constance Keene, young pianist. The artists were chosen at a committee meeting with Lawrence Bernhardt, New York representative, Wednesday afternoon.

National Symphony Listed
The National Symphony Orchestra, one of the top six orchestras in the country today, will be making a return engagement to Kingston. It was presented at the Municipal Auditorium on the eve of Pearl Harbor, December 6, 1941, with Mr. Kindler conducting at that time.

Mr. Bernhardt assured the committee that it was most fortunate in choosing the other two young artists, both of whom have received wide publicity in the past year.

Christopher Lynch gained prominence following the death of John McCormack, great Irish tenor, when he was acclaimed as the singer Mr. McCormack had chosen for his protegee. Twenty-four years old he comes to this country from Ireland this summer to prepare for his commitments with the Firestone Hour. He will replace Richard Crooks on this popular musical program in September.

Mr. Lynch has also been signed by Victor records and with this busy schedule already planned, Mr. Bernhardt said.

Diplomats Say Paris Failure Assures Unfortunate Spheres

Washington, May 9 (P)—The long-fetted split of Europe into rival Soviet-western spheres is close to an accomplished fact, diplomatic authorities said here today, because of the failure of the foreign ministers' conference at Paris.

Taking a pessimistic view, these authorities look for impending developments to complete the cleavage between the areas of Russian dominance and those under the influence of the western powers, headed by the United States and Britain.

A final factor in the division, they believe, will be Britain's announcement in the next few days of support for Secretary of State Byrnes' proposal for long-range control of Germany—a proposal sharply assailed in the Soviet press.

Project Already Has Cost $226,884 of City Cash; W.P.A. Not Included

If no unforeseen delays are encountered the city's sewage treatment plant on East Strand should be in operation early in the autumn, it was said today by City Engineer Arthur F. Hallinan.

The construction of the plant and the connecting sewer lines to date has cost the city $226,884.60, the city engineer said. This figure, however, does not include the amount contributed by the Works Progress Administration when it was in operation, and the W.P.A. figures are not available, Mr. Hallinan said.

When the W.P.A. ceased operations several years ago all records were removed from the Kingston office.

Work uncompleted on the plant and the connecting sewers include the diversion chamber now under construction on Wilbur avenue. When this diversion chamber is completed it will divert 60 per cent of all of the city's sewage direct to the treatment plant, Mr. Hallinan said.

There is also under construction several hundred feet of outfall sewer line, running from the plant to the Rondout creek, and the work of laying this line should be completed within several weeks.

At the plant itself the floating steel covers for the digesters have to be placed in position. These covers are already on hand. Each cover weighs more than a ton.

City Engineer Hallinan explained that the city was still waiting the arrival of all the gas and chlorine equipment needed in the plant. This equipment was ordered some time ago, and he said it should be received shortly.

"It will take a short time to install the chlorination equipment when it is received," said the city engineer.

There are also some odds and ends that have to be cleaned up, including painting the interior of the digesters.

Work Started in 1941
The work of constructing the sewage treatment plant was started in 1941 during the administration of C. J. Heiselman as mayor.

Inability to obtain needed equipment and material was described by City Engineer Hallinan as one of the major reasons for the delay in completing the plant and placing it in operation.

City Engineer Hallinan expressed the opinion that the sewage treatment plant was being constructed in a timely manner.

Mayor Calls Meeting on Lighting

Business Men, Utility Representatives Are Slated for Session at City Hall

Two Trains Stop

Evening Train South, Early Morning Train North Taken Off

Two local effects of the United Mine Workers' soft coal strike became apparent today in Kingston. Mayor William F. Edmuth said he would call a meeting this afternoon in his office to discuss a dimout for the city. At the meeting will be leading business men and utility representatives, the mayor indicated. The session, he said, would be "sometime after three."

Curtailed train service also will affect the city, it was said today by a spokesman for the West Shore Railroad. Effective tonight at midnight train 18, which leaves Kingston for Weehawken at 6:48 p. m., E.S.T., will be discontinued. Also affected will be train 19, which reaches Kingston at 1:46 a. m., E.S.T., from Weehawken.

Train 25 due in Kingston at 2:48 p. m., E.S.T. from Weehawken will run Sundays only. A train will leave New York at 12:35 p. m., E.S.T., Saturdays and will arrive in Kingston about 3:40 p. m., E.S.T.

Rhinecliff Trains
With the planned resumption May 16 of ferry service between Kingston and Rhinecliff mainline New York Central trains which stop at Rhinecliff gain local importance. As far as could be learned today the following trains can be obtained at Rhinecliff for New York: 7:23 a. m.; 8:20 a. m.; 10:12 a. m.; 5:57 p. m.; 8:20 p. m. Trains are scheduled on eastern standard time.

Rhinecliff trains to Albany are scheduled as follows: 6:16 a. m.; 8:19 a. m.; 12:34 p. m.; 2:15 p. m.; 3:36 p. m.; 5:48 p. m., with a special Saturday train at 2:10 p. m. Times also are eastern standard.

Poughkeepsie Trains Off
Trains leaving Poughkeepsie for Albany at 11:14 a. m., 6:22 p. m. and 9:53 p. m. will be discontinued, as will be trains leaving Poughkeepsie for New York at 11:26 a. m., 2:42 p. m., 6:33 p. m., standard time.

In all the West Shore spokesmen said today, 125 trains will be taken from the New York-Chicago-St. Louis run either May 10 or May 18.

Interrupted service, it is assumed, will cease when the coal strike crisis ends.

If a dimout is decided upon Kingston probably will return to a pre-V-J day status in business sections and street lighting. Resumed production would mean restoration of normal conditions.

King Will Leave

Naples, May 9 (P)—King Vittorio Emanuele completed preparations to leave late today.

Firemen's Convention Group Will Complete Ball Plans

Kingston's convention committee arranging for the Firemen's Ball to be held in the auditorium on Thursday evening, May 23, and the 11th annual convention of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, meeting in Kingston on July 26 and 27, will meet Friday evening at the city hall to complete plans for the ball.

The Firemen's Ball is being held under the auspices of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association, and affiliated fire companies of the city. It is the first ball of its kind in which all of the volunteer fire organizations of the city are co-operating to make a social and financial success.

Before and After Soft Coal Strike

Two views, taken from the same angle, of the Petty Island reserve coal supplies of the Philadelphia Electric Company, show (at top) a normal 258,000-ton reserve stock and (below) the stocks down to 46,000 tons as of May 6. On the present basis of curtailed power consumption plus additional coal at steam generating plants and use of fuel oil and outside electrical power, Vice President George R. Conover estimated the coal stocks would last at least three weeks and maybe four. (AP Wirephoto).

Food Allocations Are Not Enough

Supplies Urgently Needed to Halt Catastrophe, LaGuardia Says

Washington, May 9 (P)—U.N.R.R.A. Director General Fiorello La Guardia declared today that famine relief food allocations are "grossly inadequate," and besought countries with available supplies to help "prevent a catastrophe."

La Guardia placed before the 48-government council of the International Relief Organization the results of his study and efforts since the group adjourned five weeks ago at Atlantic City. And the situation outlined in his report appeared as bleak now as then.

Conference Reveals His Attitude

President Will Cross Seizure 'Bridge,' He Says, When He Comes to It

Cites Labor Act

Wagner Law Forbids Royalty Payments, Truman Thinks

Washington, May 9 (P)—President Truman pictured the coal shutdown as approaching a strike against the government itself today and questioned the legality of a royalty payment to the United Mine Workers—a key in deadlocked negotiations.

A news conference which centered on the coal strike and government steps to settle it brought these statements from Mr. Truman:

Various ways of coping with the strike are under consideration, including a White House conference of operators and United Mine Workers.

As to government seizure of the idle mines, Mr. Truman will cross that bridge when he comes to it.

The President said he thought that a royalty payment to a union would be barred by a provision of the Wagner Labor Relations Act. He did not specify what provision. Coal operators say John L. Lewis, president of the U.M.W., is demanding a 10 cent a ton royalty on coal to finance a welfare fund for miners.

He would favor government seizure of the nation's railroads if that is necessary to keep trains running.

In discussing royalty payment, he said that while the Wage Stabilization Board approved a one per cent pension fund payment to an A.F.L. electrical workers union, by means of a pay roll tax, he thought that was a different sort of thing from a royalty.

New Steps Are Taken
As Mr. Truman spoke, coal shortages cut deeper into industrial production and prompted government agencies to take new steps to conserve fuel—including a dimout in the east and midwest.

In Detroit, the General Motors and Chrysler Corporations announced the impending suspension of their assembly lines as a result of curtailed rail shipments.

Replying to a question, Mr. Truman said that he is going into the matter now as to whether he has authority to end the 39-day old coal strike without the consent of John L. Lewis, president of 400,000 striking United Mine Workers.

But, he said he did not favor laying aside the British loan in the Senate to take up labor legislation.

Mr. Truman termed the British loan as just as important.

Nor would the President commit himself one way or another on a proposal by Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) which would empower him to seize plants to safeguard the public interest and to take away seniority rights of striking workers.

Mr. Truman was requested by a reporter to make some sort of statement that would "lay out the coal strike" as he sees it now so that his position would be known. Mr. Truman said he would rather not today but that he would later. He added he did not contemplate doing it in a message to the people.

One step under consideration, he said, is calling Lewis and the coal operators to a joint conference at the White House. Lewis saw Mr. Truman several weeks ago. But, the President wouldn't say today, what had been discussed then.

Treasury Receipts
Washington, May 9 (P)—The position of the Treasury May 7: Receipts $320,927,221.25. Expenditures $305,884,604.22. Balance $15,042,616.98. Customer received for month $11,026,642.75. Receipts fiscal year July 1 $36,347,203.442.79. Expenditures fiscal year $36,676,411,446.02. Excess of expenditures $20,329,208,003.23. Total debt $272,874,443,773.38. Increase over previous day $15,429,421.80. Gold assets $20,249,055,501.31.

U. N. Committee Is Home-Seeking For Its Employees

New York, May 8 (AP)—The United Nations Headquarters Commission headed by Sir Angus Fletcher, British consul at Buffalo, N. Y., set to work today with the problem of finding homes for personnel taking precedence over the question of a permanent home site.

The commission has the task of finding homes for U. N. officials and employees within range of the Sperry Gyroscope Plant at Lake Success, Long Island, which will be interim headquarters of the secretariat and councils, and the New York city building on the World's Fair grounds in Queens, where the general assembly meets September 3.

Sir Angus emphasized that the commission's main job, however, will be to select a specific site for permanent headquarters somewhere inside the Westchester-Fairfield county area astride the New York-Connecticut state line.

That area was chosen by the site inspection group headed by Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, which now is replaced by the headquarters commission.

Sir Angus, commenting on reports that some delegations were campaigning for abandonment of the New York-Connecticut area for headquarters, said only the general assembly can make such a change.

"Our task is to make more specific recommendations with regard to the general area approved by the assembly," he added.

Sir Angus has a personal housing problem. He has just received notice that his allotted five days in his hotel are about ended.

Await Official Approval Of State Liquor Board

Referring to printed notice that a certificate had been filed with the county clerk, to the effect that Thomas Worsley of the Bronx and Otto Thoden of R.D.1, Ulster Park were doing business under the name and style of Esopus Inn, it is stated that the business still is being operated by Harry Silverman of Esopus.

Worsley and Thoden have made application for a liquor license to do business under the name of Esopus Inn, but until the application is approved by the State Liquor Authority the business is still in the name of Harry Silverman.

Penn Carnival Is Booked by 40 and 8 For Pan-Am Lot

Arrangements to present one of the largest carnivals ever to show on Pan Am Field were completed Tuesday night between the Ulster County 40 and 8 Society and Penn Premier Shows.

Charles Hummer, speaking for the war veterans' organization, said that his committee and Frankie Bland, advance man for the carnival, had signed contracts calling for the entertainment feature to play for a week on the Saugerties road site, beginning Monday, May 13.

Bland, a veteran himself, with two "itches" in the army to his credit, promised the 40 and 8 members "a real elaborate carnival with eight thrilling rides, 12 shows, including revues, a 'Monkey Circus,' sideshows, health exhibit, motordrome feature, starting four professional motorcycle riders and high diving act."

"My boss, is especially proud of our free diving act, featuring Speedy Phoenix," said Bland. "The former paratrooper, sans parachute now, dives from a 150-foot elevation into a net. He'll do his act every night at 11 o'clock."

Lloyd D. Serfass, 38-year-old owner of the Penn Premier Shows, is a marine veteran of the South Pacific, Bland told "Chuck" Hummer and his committee. "He put his show away for three years, and is back on the road again for the 1946 season, catering especially to veterans' organizations."

Committeemen from the 40 and 8 at Tuesday night's contract signing meeting were Chairman Hummer, Thomas Bohan, John N. Cordis, Attorney Walter Miller, Meyer Kaplan and Stanley Dempsey, who donated his office at the Ulster Hotel for the session.

HOME GARDENS

Before Summer planting ripens in war-scarred lands, millions of sick, broken and desperately hungry people will cry for food that isn't there, declares the American Red Cross in an appeal for food conservation. Thousands are doomed to starvation this month and thousands are marked for death next month. Others will fall victims to disease, malnutrition and infection which finds easy prey among weak bodies from hunger.

In addition to conserving food we must augment existing supplies by planting home gardens. Food grown and consumed at home reduces demand on existing stocks. There is a warning of a bread shortage, which might become serious. We all can't grow wheat, but we can grow peas and beans, which are said to be good substitutes.

Now is the time to plant that home garden in any bit of available space in the yard.

THE FRENCH AND US

"The French, they are a funny race." If the old song is not quite correct in this, at least they are different from Americans. The new French constitution provides for a weak executive and an all-powerful legislature. Americans know from dire experience that the most satisfactory presidents are strong ones, and that when Congress attempts to turn the whole show, things are either not done or else done wrong.

The French, of course, bear in mind their experience with Napoleon I and Napoleon III, who started out as lawful chief executives and then made themselves dictators. Ever since then the French bogey has been "the man on horseback", the military leader who subverts popular government. But Americans will continue to think that the best government comes from a strong man, held under popular control.

RUSSIAN PUZZLE

Editors back home from their recent foreign tour report that "the Russian enigma dominates Europe." And we might as well admit that it dominates America, too. Nobody seems to expect another war very soon, but there is a feeling in the air, in both hemispheres, that the Russians are getting ready to make trouble for somebody.

On the other hand, many sound observers of the "great Russian mystery" seem convinced that the Russians are on the level, and don't want war, and will not start any trouble for us or our neighbors unless they are convinced that we ourselves are packing up trouble for them. We'd like to know the truth, but don't quite see how to get it at present.

Meantime, it's important to keep an eye on the domestic problem of how to increase production without coal.

At first it was the United Nations Organization, commonly written U.N.O. Then it became U.N. If a world government is ever established, probably it will be reduced to just U.

DEMOCRACY AT WORK

Peru, Mass., is celebrating the 175th anniversary of its first town meeting, and is only one of many towns with as long a history for this form of government. The New England town meeting is the world's No. 1 exhibit of democracy at work. There citizens get together every year and personally decide what the community shall undertake during the coming year, and who will do it. Their personal knowledge usually enables them to decide promptly whether the new school should be located north of Jones' swamp or south near the railroad. They elect fence viewers, hog wardens and, above all, select, men or general managers of the town. To be a selectman is to hold one of the most honored positions in the country. John Quincy Adams once said that service as a selectman would not be beneath the dignity of an ex-president of the United States.

American troubles in local government usually arise from departures, sometimes necessary, from the town meeting idea. If

THE RADIO DEBATE

Because the F.C.C. censors the radio by general provisions which tie them in a knot, no radio network or radio station may pursue an editorial policy. Newspapers may be Republican, Democratic, New Deal, Socialist, Communist or anything or none of these, but not radio networks or radio stations. They are supposed by official order to be bi-lah.

The broadcasters according to F.C.C. are persons without minds who speak words that represent neither knowledge, experience, wisdom or decision. If they say anything that means anything, they are supposed to give the opposition equal time to reply—which of course they avoid by every dodge known to the business, as such a chain debate would waste time, money and produce no sense. The more successful and smarter broadcasters cover themselves skillfully, although the Left-Wingers protect themselves by all saying the same thing at the same time which creates the impression of a preponderance of opinion.

As for newscasters, they are supposed to read only what is handed them. Reading is a theatrical art. The intonation, the use of pause and emphasis, often changes the meaning. A clever and tricky newscaster can give an impression which is different from the script when examined. The words are the same; the impression upon the listeners is different. The networks and radio stations can do little about this because they are dealing with human factors. A newscaster swears that he read what he understood.

The principal difficulty arises from the fact that radio started as show business. It was not a part of news but of theatricals. It was really vaudeville, in the best sense of the term—or the worst—depending upon taste. News and comment came in later, but still as part of the show business. Most commentators and newscasters were originally hired not for their brains but for their voices. A baritone was worth more than a brain. Noises of typewriters and telegraph keys added emphasis and excitement but no clarity. Trivial items are projected by voice and noises to appear important. That is vaudeville, not editorial handling.

Another technique is the so-called forum when theoretically both sides of a question are scantly discussed. The debates are so arranged that there is hardly time for a comprehensive discussion. The other day I was invited to debate the British loan in six and a half minutes. If the public is invited to ask questions, the speaker has no time to answer. The moderator, in such debates, owes it to the public to keep his speakers to the subject. But he rarely does.

I pick an example from "America's Town Meeting of the Air."

"Man . . . Mr. Lampell, Russia made a non-aggression pact with Hitler. She didn't make any alliance with the United States."

"Mr. Lampell: I think the question is still open to discussion as to who did not want an alliance with whom. It seemed that we were the ones who did not want collective security against fascism during the early '30's. It was not Russia."

Mr. Lampell did not answer the "Man," who asked a specific question.

Or take this example:

"Man: Mr. Cecil Brown. Aren't there many countries beside Spain who are dictatorial, heartless, and have not fought the Axis? If so, why must Spain cause a war?"

"Mr. Brown: Why must Spain cause a war?"

Mr. Denny did intervene this time to clarify the subject.

"Mr. Brown: Well, Fascism reminds me of my youth in one way when I used to play with firecrackers on the Fourth of July. I remember then we'd buy these small firecrackers all fastened together with a string and you lit one firecracker and they all went off in quick succession. I think the past history of Fascism is something like those firecrackers. Wherever a center of Fascism remains, there is the inspiration and the necessity to make another war. That's my answer."

The question was not answered. And the "Man" could not, under the rules of the game, protest. He had his chance to ask a question; he was not answered; he had to shut up. It would not have been handed that way editorially; but this is still vaudeville.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)
AS WE GROW OLDER

"The middle-aged, the elderly, and the aged make up a steadily increasing proportion of the physician's practice. The medical practitioner no longer spends most of his time caring for babies with summer diarrhoea, for adults with typhoid fever, malaria and tuberculosis. His young patients are far healthier than they were in former generations, and many more of them grow to middle age and become afflicted in their mature years with disorders of the circulation, diabetes, chronic rheumatism, cancer."

I am quoting Dr. Ernst Boas from his book "Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty", in which he points out that diseases of the elderly come on quietly and unnoticed, become chronic in their course, and lead to permanent changes in the human organism. This means that these changes must be studied by the physician, in order to maintain the health of these valuable members of the community.

As we think of these physician specialists in the treatment of the elderly, geriatricians, we may think that they have to treat some special diseases common in old age. As a matter of fact the diseases are the same as in younger individuals but the tissues and body processes of the elderly have changed.

Another point we may overlook is that old age does not come on suddenly nor at any stated age. Aging really starts at birth in a sense, though we develop until age of thirty to thirty-five. From thirty-five to fifty, we are still aging, but we ourselves and others do not recognize that we are growing older, until about the age of fifty.

The idea behind the general management of the patient past fifty is (a) to help him to guard against mental, physical, and emotional extremes, and yet (b) let him remain as active in his mental and physical work as possible so that he will feel, as he really is, a useful member of the community. Once he is not growing old but really is old.

Finally, just as at any age, there are just three points to watch—work, rest, food—so also with the individual past fifty.

any method so effective could be devised to bring local government home to the average voter, it would reduce inefficiency and corruption to the minimum and make Americans really proud of their city administrations.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

E. Frank Flanagan, Wall street clothing merchant, was re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting held on January 20, 1928. James A. Dwyer and Lewis Brown were elected vice presidents, and Morris Sampter, treasurer.

Louis S. Coe was reappointed executive secretary of the organization.

The three directors chosen were William E. Byrne, Lewis Brown and David Burgevin, who succeeded Charles A. Lasher, Samuel J. Messinger and William A. Van Valkenburgh, whose terms had expired.

That year the annual membership dinner was held on January 24, at the Governor Clinton Hotel, with 276 in attendance. The address of the evening was delivered by Harry Collins Spillman, whose topic was "At the Gateway of the Market."

And while on the subject of organizations in 1928 the American Legion of this city had an active dinner club, known as the American Legion Luncheon Club which met once a week in the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street.

The meals were prepared by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary. At every meeting an interesting program would be presented.

At the meeting of January 20, the speaker of the evening was Paul A. Zucca, chief specialist of the Wall street clothing house, now known as Flanagan's. Mr. Zucca, who is now one of the outstanding members of the Common Council, gave the Legion members an interesting talk on the "various stages necessary in the manufacture of a felt hat."

Mayor E. J. Dempsey on February 1, 1928, appointed W. Anderson Carl a member of the Charity Board to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Ernest W. Kearney.

Two well-known men who died in December, 1927, in this city were William G. Maynard who died on the 28th, and John Remus who died on the 29th.

Mr. Maynard, who lived on West Chester street, had been a member of the Kingston Post Office Department since 1889 when he entered the service as a clerk in the Rondout post office, and when the present Central Post Office was completed in 1908, he was assigned to duty there, and rose to the position of assistant postmaster. He held this post up until his death.

Mr. Remus who had represented the Ninth ward in the Common Council, was for years engaged in the building contracting business in Kingston, and erected many of the fine homes and other buildings in the city. Fraternally he was a member of Aretas Lodge of Odd Fellows, and of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The Y.W.C.A. at its annual meeting on February 19, 1928, re-elected Mrs. George E. Rice as president. Mrs. Frank W. Thompson was elected vice president; Alma K. Tyler, recording secretary; Jessie Goodsell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, treasurer.

Unless the Government takes over control of housing, people in Belfast will be without sufficient homes for the next 50 years, legislators of Northern Ireland claimed, in urging action. Senate Test Votes Reveal Loan to Britain Will Pass Congress; Real Problem Now Is Minority

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 9—Test votes in the Senate indicate clearly that the loan to Great Britain will pass Congress. Amendments that are tacked on in the course of the measure's progress through the two Houses can be ironed out in conference. But the fact is that the vote against demanding permanent possession of bases at present leased to the U. S. by Britain was a true reflection of the Senate's attitude toward the loan itself.

A minority favors the idea. There's no question about that now. The real problem is whether a minority, which is bent on using almost any tactics to defeat the will of the majority, will succeed presently in sidetracking the bill or in keeping it from ever getting into the conference committee stage.

The coal strike has undoubtedly given aid to the opponents of the British loan who want delay. There are some senators, favorable to the loan, who feel that the country should be protected against further damage to the economic system through the prolongation of the strike.

One thing seems sure—if the loan bill is set aside, it will not be without some agreement as to fixing a time for voting. If that kind of understanding is reached in the Senate, it is probable that some form of anti-strike legislation will then be passed. If the Senate ever acts, the House of Representatives would move quickly to accept the Senate measure.

The truth is the House of Representatives for several years has had a substantial majority in favor of legislation to curtail laboristic practices by labor unions that have closed shops. The Senate has repeatedly blocked action. The miners' union has complete control over the miners of the country and the insistence by the miners' chiefs on an acceptance of one demand before any others will be discussed is, of course, an abuse of the right of collective bargaining. Certainly no such extreme power was ever contemplated by the members of Congress who voted for the Wagner Labor Relations Law in the first instance.

Pressure on Congress to do something about the coal strike's effects on the economic life of the country has been increasing in the last 24 hours. The people are beginning to wonder how far the situation must drift before the legislators will do something about it.

The difficulty is that, since this is an election year, members do not like to stick their necks out and push for legislation which in a few days might seem to be superfluous. Both the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O. are capable of calling off strikes as quickly as he initiates them. He can do an about-face rapidly and leave the legislation hanging in the air—but the members of Congress who sponsored it might then feel they had incurred the antagonism of certain labor unions unnecessarily.

The curious thing about the present situation, however, is that not a single spokesman of organized labor in the upper levels of the movement has ventured to speak out on the coal strike or its issues. Both the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O. leaders apparently approve of the economic disturbance that has been caused and of the widespread suffering that has resulted already from the breakdown of the collective bargaining process which they so frequently extol.

Before the Wagner law was passed, Congress was assured that, if collective bargaining could only be written into the statutes, a prolific cause of strikes would be eliminated. The record shows that strikes are as severe as they were before 1935, when the law was passed.

In the Senate this week Senator Barkley, the majority leader, asked what strike had ever been prevented by the cooling-off provisions of the Smith-Connally Law and not a single member present on the floor knew enough about the situation to tell him that that law had been passed throughout the war the law had served as a deterrent because the 30-day provision did afford time in many cases for the collective bargaining process to function.

A better question might have been whether the Wagner Law had prevented serious strikes in the last decade. If the answer is in the negative, then the inference might be drawn that Mr. Barkley's expressed antipathy to legislation about strikes could be construed to mean that he favored a repeal of the Wagner law—which, of course, he doesn't. His question illustrates the lack of realism surrounding the whole debate on labor legislation.

THE TEACHERS' UNION

Public school teachers are organizing. Probably no group needs "union" benefits more. Yet a Petrillo may soon be able to dictate public instruction of our children.

The American Federation of Teachers in many a city, especially in the east and west coasts has been successful. Its ranks are swollen with new members. In Denver, a city with comparatively little sentiment for unionization till war industries planted the germ, the A. F. of T. local has boasted its membership from 50 to 400 since December. Membership campaigns in other cities are chalking up records.

The A. F. of T. is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. While it is as old as the New Deal, it evidently is just now—in this first year after the winning of a war to create individual freedom stomping to the seat of power. It enrolls teachers of public schools in all grades.

Probably no profession, including doctors, have been more unselfish, more self-sacrificing in the building of America than public school teachers. Patiently, tolerantly they have pointed the way to higher standards of living while their own incomes denied them the fruits of the higher standards.

But breadth of vision, and unwillingness to battle for self-interests are being set aside. Although some teachers feel the profession is stooping when it accepts unionism; it appears likely that it won't be long till the A. F. of T. can swing its weight around with comparatively solid backing from the ranks of the teachers. Once the propagandists, the preachers of greed and hatred, get inside the door of an organization they almost invariably win.

I believe it will be only a matter of a few years at the outside before the teachers union can marshal overwhelming majorities in all the big school systems and in many a rural school unless some unforeseen obstacle arises. And to date hardly a protesting voice has been heard outside the ranks of the teachers themselves.

And if the American Federation of Teachers follows the example of its power-drunk affiliates, it will be satisfied with nothing less than complete domination of its field. On salaries it will swing from one extreme to the other, demanding more than many a school district can pay. The Denver local's first demand is for a maximum of $4,200 a year for teachers holding master's degree. This amounts to $467 a month for nine months.

One of the universal demands of the A. F. of T. is teacher "tenure"—a graduate of continued employment until retirement. Under the tenure contract a teacher may be dismissed only for cause.

Many a school system already has given its teachers such assurance, to which normally there is no objection. But the tenure contract is peculiarly vulnerable to union abuse. A Petrillo may be expected to hurl all the weight of the A. F. of T. against any board of trustees for trying to fire a teacher for any cause short of murder.

A hint that some little Petrillos already are working in this union of educators was given recently in a conversation of an acquaintance of mine with the vice president of the Denver local. This vice president expressed regret that his union was not a C.I.O. affiliate instead of a member of the comparatively mild A.F. family. He appeared to admire the militant C.I.O.

A clause in the local's charter calls for maintenance of "high professional standards" and the official was asked if that meant the union would not admit to membership undesirable teachers, such as Communists. He evaded the question by asking, "Who knows what Communism is?" But when pressed he admitted a Communist could join the Teachers' union.

His local has launched a drive to unionize all teachers in Colorado. You see how hopeless would be any attempt to fire a teacher for subversive teachings.

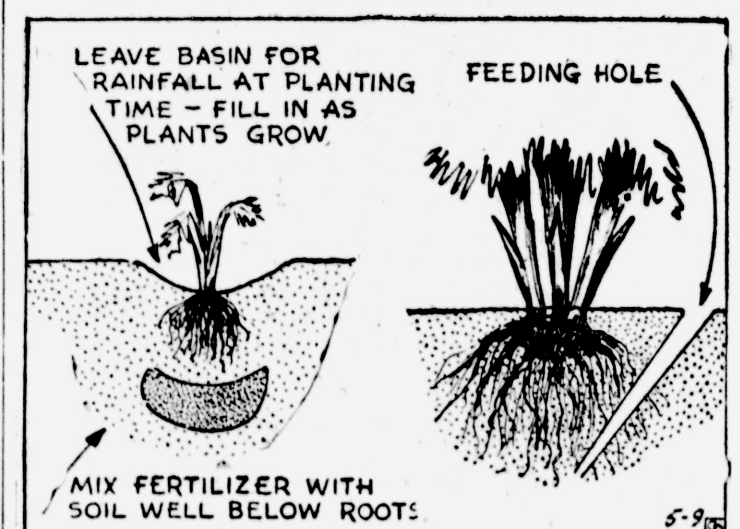

Control of schools by parents, through their elected boards of trustees, has been one of the anchors of democracy since the colonists first founded a public school. This principle has stood like the Rockies against erosive political and social forces. The farmer especially is not going to relish the idea of turning over school over to teachers controlled by an outside labor dictator. But by an outside labor dictator, he wants to retain the right to say what, how and by whom his children shall be taught he will have to act quickly.

He will need to do two things: (1) Pay teachers as much as good private secretaries or business women get and (2) pass laws prohibiting public school teachers—just as federal employees are prohibited—from joining labor unions which might act against the public interest.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Success With Temperamental Delphiniums

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

DESPITE their stately beauty many gardeners shy away from delphiniums claiming they are too temperamental.

Their tantrums can be curbed, however, if attention is given to their care and feeding, and they deserve a place even in the small garden where they can be mixed in a perennial border.

Seldom do the plants come true from seed, but it is possible to obtain quality plants from reliable nurseries which grow them from carefully selected seed.

At planting time leave a basin or depression around each plant as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This will serve to catch rainfall and give the plants ample moisture until they are established. As the plants grow the basin can be filled in.

Some growers mix a 12-16-12 complete fertilizer with the soil at the time of planting. Others mix a few handfuls of fertilizer with the soil well below the roots, as illustrated.

Mature plants may also require that food be made available down among the roots. To do this, punch three or four holes—12 to 16 inches deep—with a crowbar around each plant, as illustrated. Fill the holes with one part of muriate of potash and three parts of bone meal thoroughly mixed.

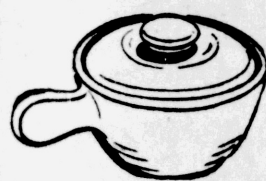

The roots will grow towards this food, which will not burn the plant as it is slow acting.

To have especially fine blooms, feed with liquid manure at weekly intervals when flower spikes begin to form.

The World Today

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst
Winston Churchill calls for a faithful understanding with Russia through the United Nations to avoid war and urges the English-speaking world and the western democracies of Europe to move together in creating true fellowship with the Soviet Union.

That's well spoken. Few will disagree with Churchill for, as he adds, "only in this way can catastrophe be avoided." However, when we sit down to figure out ways and means of creating fellowship with Russia we encounter difficulties.

The first obstacle we come up against is that it takes two to make a friendship, and that it involves at least a modicum of agreement on things which matter. There are as many points of disagreement between the western Allies on the one hand and the Russian on the other as there are seeds in a pomegranate.

The trend of the Big Four Conference of Foreign Ministers in Paris gives us a good indication of how the wind lies. The conferees have been unable to agree on any major point of the European peace treaties, and as a result Secretary of State Byrnes has proposed that the drafting of these pacts be shifted to a 21-nation conference in Paris. The division of opinion has been between Russia and the Anglo-American pair, with France frequently trying to hold the balance between them. There has been a similar clash of viewpoints in the Security Council of U. N.

Well, what's the answer to all this disagreement? I believe that most of the differences arise from two main sources: These are ideology, and the tremendous turnover in the European spheres of influence of the great powers.

Easier Said Than...

In the matter of political ideologies it might seem that the Big Three could agree to disagree, but actually that's far easier said than done. The totalitarian rule of Communism is utterly opposed to the democracy of the western Allies. Also more than one of the latter believe that Moscow is engaged in a systematic crusade to spread Communism around the world. It's a fear which has dogged the countries of western Europe ever since Moscow proclaimed its ideal of a "revolution" a generation ago. And, of course, the Soviet is equally sure that the western Allies are trying to hamstring legitimate Communist ambitions.

The dangers in the realignment of spheres of influence have been emphasized in this column before. A tremendous vacuum has been created in Europe by the disappearance of Germany and Italy as powers. That vacuum must be filled, and Russia is surging into it. Britain finds her position both on the continent and in the Mediterranean heavily challenged. He would be a rash prophet who predicted that this battle of giants could be halted before the realignment of domination has run its full course. The best one can do is pray that the turnover can be effected without another war.

The great changes have been accompanied by vast secrecy. That naturally has created violent suspicions—and suspicions are breeders of trouble. Report has it in Paris that the United States and Britain have been considering the idea of insisting that Russia lift the lid of secrecy from eastern Europe so that the rest of the world can get a look. One wonders just what good that would do, for we know we should find that Moscow has consolidated the whole of that vast area, and the Balkans clear down as far as Greece and Turkey, into the Red sphere of influence. That's a fait accompli.

So as previously remarked, it isn't easy to figure out ways of creating fellowship with Russia right now, and undoubtedly Moscow finds the problem equally difficult.

and copper pipe and also a quantity of lead was reported missing from the hotel.

While questioning Lewis and Van Steenburgh the officers were told, they stated, that entrance to the Preston house on Mill street had also been a job of the two. There after forcing an entrance articles of clothing and skates were taken.

During the investigation all of the articles taken from Miss Burnett's home were recovered either from the uptown store or by Detective Cramer and Captain Stoudt from the Van Steenburgh residence.

Detective Cramer said that while entrance to the recreation hall at Lawton Park had also been admitted by the two, nothing was missing from the hall.

Lewis and Van Steenburgh were later arraigned before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the town of Ulster on a charge of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry growing out of the Burnett home entry. Both were held for action of the grand jury when pleas of innocent were entered. The two were brought back to jail. Detective Cramer stated today that warrants would be filed against Lewis and Van Steenburgh today as a result of the city investigations.

U. N. Committee Is Home-Seeking For Its Employees

New York, May 8 (AP)—The United Nations Headquarters Commission headed by Sir Angus Fletcher, British consul at Buffalo, N. Y., set to work today with the problem of finding homes for personnel taking precedence over the question of a permanent home site.

The commission has the task of finding homes for U. N. officials and employees within range of the Sperry Gyroscope Plant at Lake Success, Long Island, which will be interim headquarters of the secretariat and councils, and the New York city building on the World's Fair grounds in Queens, where the general assembly meets September 3.

Sir Angus emphasized that the commission's main job, however, will be to select a specific site for permanent headquarters somewhere inside the Westchester-Fairfield county area astride the New York-Connecticut state line.

That area was chosen by the site inspection group headed by Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, which now is replaced by the headquarters commission.

Sir Angus, commenting on reports that some delegations were campaigning for abandonment of the New York-Connecticut area for headquarters, said only the general assembly can make such a change.

"Our task is to make more specific recommendations with regard to the general area, approved by the assembly," he added.

Sir Angus has a personal housing problem. He has just received notice that his allotted five days in his hotel are about ended.

Referring to printed notice that a certificate had been filed with the county clerk, to the effect that Thomas Worsley of the Bronx and Otto Thoden of R.D.1, Ulster Park were doing business under the name and style of Esopus Inn, it is stated that the business still is being operated by Harry Silverman of Esopus.

Worsley and Thoden have made application for a liquor license to do business under the name of Esopus Inn, but until the application is approved by the State Liquor Authority the business is still in the name of Harry Silverman.

Penn Carnival Is Booked by 40 and 8 For Pan-Am Lot

Arrangements to present one of the largest carnivals ever to show on Pan Am Field were completed Tuesday night between the Ulster County 40 and 8 Society and Penn Premier Shows.

Charles Hummer, speaking for the war veterans' organization, said that his committee and Frankie Bland, advance man for the carnival, had signed contracts calling for the entertainment feature to play for a week on the Saugerties road site, beginning Monday, May 13.

Bland, a veteran himself, with two "hitches" in the army to his credit, promised the 40 and 8 members "a real elaborate" carnival with eight thrilling rides, 12 shows, including revues, a "Monkey Circus," sideshows, health exhibit, motordrome feature, starring four professional motorcycle riders and high diving act.

"My boss, is especially proud of our free diving act, featuring Speedy Phoenix," said Bland. "The former paratrooper, sans parachute now, dives from a 150-foot elevation into a net. He'll do his act every night at 11 o'clock."

Lloyd D. Serfass, 38-year-old owner of the Penn Premier Shows, is a marine veteran of the South Pacific. Bland told "Chuck" Hummer and his committee, "He put his show away for three years, and is back on the road again for the 1946 season, catering especially to veterans' organizations."

Committeemen from the 40 and 8 at Tuesday night's contract signing meeting were Chairman Hummer, Thomas Bohan, John N. Cordis, Attorney Walter Miller, Meyer Kaplan and Stanley Dempsey, who donated his office at the Ulster Hotel for the session.

Tiano Hits Tinge That Movies Add To Newsmen's Life

Debunking the popular movie conception of the modern reporter as a harum-scarum guy, Charles J. Tiano of the editorial staff of the Kingston Daily Freeman addressed the Lions Club Tuesday on the subject of the duties of a reporter on a present day newspaper.

The speaker, a popular figure in local sports circles for many years, pictured the newspaper profession as a "fascinating adventure," saying that "it fingers the pulse of life itself—with all its drama, tragedy, happiness, excitement, adventure, it is a living thing."

Makes Comparison

Drawing a comparison between the conception of a reporter through the medium of the motion picture and his actual status, Mr. Tiano cited the fact that "the American newspaper field is crammed with a endless list of personable, competent, intelligent men who serve the public in the highest traditions of the fourth estate." He pointed out that the trend toward a higher type of reporter began long ago, that the job has its heart-warming compensations, and that it is a satisfying career for thousands of men.

The high public responsibility associated with a reporter's position was cited as an inducement to young men who might be entertaining thoughts of becoming reporters, and the necessity of attention to minute details was portrayed as excellent training for all walks of life.

In closing, Mr. Tiano said it was his belief that newspapers were steadily improving—printing more news and presenting it in a fairer manner, that their interests have broadened enormously; that reporters have almost unlimited opportunities to develop specialties through the modern newspaper.

Bernhardt Speaks

Another feature of the Lions Club program was the appearance of Lawrence Bernhardt of the Columbia Concerts, Inc. Mr. Bernhardt spoke briefly on the need for the support of the businessman for the community concerts, pointing out that regardless of their feelings concerning music, the support of such a project maintained high standards of music in the community. Mr. Bernhardt also rendered two piano solos for his audience.

An invitation from the Rotary Club for a joint meeting on Wednesday, May 29, at the Hotel Stuyvesant was accepted by the Lions.

Reflects Upswing In Nation's Birth Rate

The nation's increasing population is reflected in records of Associated Hospital Service, New York's Blue Cross Plan, which indicate the birth of 7,960 babies during the first quarter of 1946, or 14 babies for every thousand subscribers, as against 5,797, or 12½ per thousand during the same period a year ago.

Complications in connection with childbirth are also on the increase, the report reveals. According to Louis H. Pink, presi-

Small Fry Needs Own Play Space

(By Meredith Moulton Redhead)

A crawling moppet is a bundle of contradictions. The ability to go under his own steam widens his horizon and gives him his first feelings of independence. Yet he must scurry back to mother often for reassurance and comfort. It's wonderful to explore bookshelves and tables and chairs, to pull pots and pans from a floor-level kitchen cupboard. But after a few minutes in this enchanting world a chap gets mighty lonely, so he scurries back to mother to make sure his favorite protector is still there.

This new independence should be cultivated. Every well-balanced mother wants a manly little chap, not an apron-string son. Yet the most rugged small fry still needs a watchful eye on his rangings for it will be many a year before his own decisions can be counted wholly wise.

When possible, an excellent way to further this growing resourcefulness is to set your child up a room of his own. If this is beyond accomplishment, what with the housing shortage as it is, find a corner that can be converted into a playroom. Rig up a set of shelves where he can keep his toys. He will be less apt to play all over the house, to scatter his toys from room to room, if he has a specific place to keep them.

While he is still very young, try to locate this play corner close to your own work center, so you can keep an eye on him and he can feel your reassuring presence. If this room is large enough to permit a small table and chair, such a unit could serve well both for play and meals. At this age baby is better off eating by himself; there will be less temptation to slip him tasty nibbles of adult food if he does not see his parents' menus.

By now he is probably enjoying junior foods—those tender-textured, chopped combinations of vegetables, soups, meats, and fruit puddings. These heartier foods afford a varied diet, and accustom your baby to an expanding selection of new tastes, natural bouquets, and savors. In infant eating, as in all other phases of baby development, everything comes in its own good time. And while baby's feet are an expanding matter month by month, it must grow gradually, and he should not acquire too sophisticated a taste in eating by nibbling on adults' highly-seasoned fare.

dent, maternity cases represent the largest percentage of cases hospitalized under New York's Blue Cross Plan. The upswing in this category may be only partially due to the nation's increasing birth rate, for it also reflects the increase in Blue Cross membership and the growing tendency among women to have their babies born in hospitals," he said.

Membership in the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary is now limited to owners of boats, airplanes and amateur radio stations.

MOTHER'S DAY BRUNCH

Sunday, May 12th, is Mother's Day. Sons and daughters, fathers everywhere pay tribute to Mother on this day. Let Mother's Day be "family day" in the kitchen. Sons and daughters, why not pitch in and launch a festive brunch for the "First Lady of Your House"? It will be great fun and a real treat for Mother.

Mother's Day "Brunch"
Fresh Strawberries and Cream
Creamed Eggs on Bacon Waffles
Broiled Tomatoes
Coffee Milk Molasses Oatmeal Cookies

*Bacon Waffles
Just before baking waffles, stir in about 1/2 cup of crisp, crumbled bacon to your favorite waffle recipe. Serve it with creamed eggs.

*Molasses Oatmeal Cookies
1/2 cup shortening 1 egg
3/4 cup light molasses 1 1/2 cups sifted flour

2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 1/2 cups oatmeal, uncooked
1/2 tsp. nutmeg

Cream shortening, gradually add molasses, and cream well. Beat in egg until light. Combine and sift flour, salt, soda, baking powder and spices. Add to creamed mixture. Add oatmeal, nutmegs, and raisins. Chill dough in refrigerator. Shape into balls, roll in granulated sugar and place on a greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 50 cookies.

For a gay finish to a festive day, give Mother an orchid and celebrate further by taking her out to dinner. Give Mother a chance to say, "What's Cooking?"

World War 2 Dead Total Reaches 295,867 Figure

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The armed forces count their combat dead in World War 2 at 295,867 and another 12,744 still are missing.

A V-E Day anniversary compilation also showed 679,254 wounded, bringing casualty totals to 967,845. There were duplications, because some men suffered wounds more than once.

By services, the figures follow: Army, through February 28—229,238 dead, 598,935 wounded in action, 10,897 missing.

Navy, through March 31—45,372 dead, 24,678 wounded, 1,646 missing.

Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—Hoichi Narasaki, who served 32 years in the United States Navy and then returned to Okayama, Japan, to live in 1934, has applied for resumption of pension payments from the navy.

Occupation headquarters said Narasaki was the first to make formal application for the pension, but that many other former U. S. Navy crewmen now in Japan had made inquiries.

Narasaki drew his pension from 1934 until the freezing of Japanese assets in the United States in 1940. Headquarters advised him he would have to await settlement of the reparations program.

HOME GARDENS

Before summer planting ripens in war-scarred lands, millions of sick, broken and desperately hungry people will cry for food that isn't there, declares the American Red Cross in an appeal for food conservation. Thousands are doomed to starvation this month and thousands are marked for death next month. Others will fall victims to disease, malnutrition and infection which finds easy prey among weak bodies from hunger.

In addition to conserving food we must augment existing supplies by planting home gardens. Food grown and consumed at home reduces demand on existing stocks. There is a warning of a bread shortage, which might become serious. We all can't grow wheat, but we can grow peas and beans, which are said to be good substitutes.

Now is the time to plant that home garden in any bit of available space in the yard.

THE FRENCH AND US

"The French, they are a funny race." If the old song is not quite correct in this, at least they are different from Americans. The new French constitution provides for a weak executive and an all-powerful legislature. Americans know from dire experience that the most satisfactory presidents are strong ones, and that when Congress attempts to run the whole show, things are either not done or else done wrong.

The French, of course, bear in mind their experience with Napoleon I and Napoleon III, who started out as lawful chief executives and then made themselves dictators. Ever since then the French bogey has been "the man on horseback," the military leader who subverts popular government. But Americans will continue to think that the best government comes from a strong man, held under popular control.

RUSSIAN PUZZLE

Editors back home from their recent foreign tour report that "the Russian enigma dominates Europe." And we might as well admit that it dominates America, too. Nobody seems to expect another war very soon, but there is a feeling in the air, in both hemispheres, that the Russians are getting ready to make trouble for somebody.

On the other hand, many sound observers of the "great Russian mystery" seem convinced that the Russians are on the level, and don't want war, and will not start any trouble for us or our neighbors unless they are convinced that we ourselves are packing up trouble for them. We'd like to know the truth, but don't quite see how to get it at present.

Meantime, it's important to keep an eye on the domestic problem of how to increase production without coal.

At first it was the United Nations Organization, commonly written U.N.O. Then it became U.N. If a world government is ever established, probably it will be reduced to just U.

DEMOCRACY AT WORK

Peru, Mass., is celebrating the 175th anniversary of its first town meeting, and is only one of many towns with as long a history for this form of government. The New England town meeting is the world's No. 1 exhibit of democracy at work. There citizens get together every year and personally decide what the community shall undertake during the coming year, and who will do it. Their personal knowledge usually enables them to decide promptly whether the new school should be located north of Jones' swamp or south near the railroad. They elect fence viewers, hog wardens and, above all, selectmen or general managers of the town. To be a selectman is to hold one of the most honored positions in the country. John Quincy Adams once said that service as a selectman would not be beneath the dignity of an ex-president of the United States.

American troubles in local government usually arise from departures, sometimes necessary, from the town meeting idea. If

THE RADIO DEBATE

Because the F.C.C. censors the radio by general provisions which tie them in a knot, no radio network or radio station may pursue an editorial policy. Newspapers may be Republican, Democratic, New Deal, Socialist, Communist or anything or none of these, but not radio networks or radio stations. They are supposed by official order to be blank.

The broadcasters according to F.C.C. are persons without minds who speak words that represent neither knowledge, experience, wisdom or opinion. If they say anything that means anything, they are supposed to give the opposition equal time to reply—which of course they avoid by every dodge known to the business, as such a chain debate would waste time, money and produce no result. The more successful and smarter broadcasters cover themselves skillfully, although the Left-Wingers protect themselves by all saying the same thing at the same time which creates the impression of a non-dependence of opinion.

As for newscasters, they are supposed to read only what is handed them. Reading as a theatrical art. The intonation, the use of pause and emphasis, often changes the meaning. A clever and tricky newscaster can give an impression which is different from the script when examined. The words are the same; the impression upon the listeners is different. The networks and radio stations can do little about this because they are dealing with human factors. A newscaster swears that he read what he understood.

The principal difficulty arises from the fact that radio started as show business. It was not a part of news but of theatricals. It was really vaudeville, in the best sense of the term—or the worst—depending upon taste. News and comment came in later, but still as part of the show business. Most commentators and newscasters were originally hired not for their brains but for their voices. A baritone was worth more than a brain. Noises of typewriters and telegraph keys added emphasis and excitement but no clarity. Trivial items are projected by voice and noises to appear important. That is vaudeville, not editorial handling.

Another technique is the so-called forum when theoretically both sides of a question are equally discussed. The debates are so arranged that there is hardly time for a comprehensive discussion. The other day I was invited to debate the British loan in six and a half minutes. If the public is invited to ask questions, the speaker has no time to answer. The moderator, in such debates, owes it to the public to keep his speakers to the subject. But he rarely does.

I pick an example from "America's Town Meeting of the Air."

"Man": Mr. Lampell, Russia made a non-aggression pact with Hitler. She didn't make any alliance with the United States.

"Mr. Lampell: I think the question is still open to discussion as to who did not want an alliance with whom. It seemed that we were the ones who did not want collective security against fascism during the early '30's. It was not Russia."

Mr. Lampell did not answer the "Man," who asked a specific question.

"Man": Mr. (Cecil) Brown. Aren't there many countries beside Spain who are dictatorial, heartless, and have not fought the Axis? If so, why must Spain cause a war?

"Mr. Brown: Why must Spain cause a war?"

Mr. Denny did intervene this time to clarify the subject.

"Mr. Brown: Well, Fascism reminds me of my youth in one way when I used to play with firecrackers on the Fourth of July. I remember that we'd buy these small firecrackers all fastened together with a string and you lit one firecracker and they all went off in quick succession. I think the past history of Fascism is something like those firecrackers. Wherever a center of Fascism remains, there is the inspiration and the necessity to make another war. That's my answer."

"The question was not answered. And the 'Man' could not, under the rules of the game, press the question, as a questioner he was not answered; he had to shut up. It would not have been handled that way editorially; but this is still vaudeville.

AS WE GROW OLDER

"The middle-aged, the elderly, and the aged make up a steadily increasing proportion of the physician's practice. The medical practitioner no longer spends most of his time caring for babies with summer diarrhoea, for adults with typhoid fever, malaria and tuberculosis. His young patients are far healthier than they were in former generations, and many more of them grow to middle age and become afflicted in their mature years with disorders of the circulation, diabetes, chronic rheumatism, cancer."

I am quoting Dr. Ernst Boas from his book "Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty," in which he points out that diseases of the elderly come on quietly and unnoticed, become chronic in their course, and lead to permanent changes in the human organism. This means that these changes must be studied, by the physician, in order to maintain the health of these valuable members of the community. As we think of these physician specialists in the treatment of the elderly, geriatricians, we may think that they have to treat some special diseases common in old age. As a matter of fact the diseases are the same as in younger individuals but the tissues and body processes of the elderly have changed.

Another point we may overlook is that old age does not come on suddenly nor at any stated age. Aging really starts at birth in a sense, though we develop until age of thirty to thirty-five. From thirty-five to fifty, we are still aging, but we ourselves and others do not recognize that we are growing older, until about the age of fifty.

The idea behind the general management of the patient past fifty is (a) to help him to guard against mental, physical and emotional extremes, and yet let him remain as active in his mental and physical work as possible so that he will feel, as he really is, a useful member of the community. Once there appears to be no need for his activities he is not growing old but really is old.

Finally, just as at any age, there are just three points to watch—work, rest, food—so also with the individual past fifty.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

E. Frank Flanagan, Wall street clothing merchant, was re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting held on January 20, 1928. James A. Dwyer and Lewis Brown were elected vice presidents, and Morris Sampter, treasurer.

Louis S. Coe was reappointed executive secretary of the organization.

The three directors chosen were William B. Byrne, Lewis Brown and David Burgevin, who succeeded Charles A. Lasher, Samuel J. Messinger and William A. Van Valkenburgh, whose terms had expired.

This year the annual membership dinner was held on January 24, at the Governor Clinton Hotel, with 276 in attendance. The address of the evening was delivered by Harry Collins Spillman, whose topic was "At the Gateway of the Market."

And while on the subject of organizations in 1928 the American Legion of this city had an active dinner club, known as the American Legion Luncheon Club which met once a week in the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street. The meals were prepared by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary. At every meeting an interesting program would be presented.

At the meeting of January 20, the speaker of the evening was Paul A. Zucca, hat specialist of the Wall street clothing house now known as Flanagan's. Mr. Zucca, who is now one of the outstanding members of the Common Council, gave the Legion members an interesting talk on the various stages necessary in the manufacture of a felt hat.

Mayor E. J. Dempsey on February 1, 1928, appointed W. Anderson, Carl a member of the Charity Board to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Ernest W. Kearney.

Two well-known men who died in December, 1927, in this city were William G. Maynard, who died on the 28th, and John Remus who died on the 29th.

Mr. Maynard, who lived on West Chester street, had been a member of the Kingston Post Office Department since 1889 when he entered the service as a clerk in the Rondout post office, and when the present Central Post Office was completed in 1908, he was assigned to duty there, and rose to the position of assistant postmaster. He held this post up until his death.

Mr. Remus who had represented the Ninth ward in the Common Council was for years engaged in the building contracting business in Kingston, and erected many of the fine homes and other buildings in the city. Fraternally he was a member of Aretas Lodge of Odd Fellows, and of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The Y.W.C.A. at its annual meeting on February 6, 1928, re-elected Mrs. George F. Rice as president. Mrs. Frank W. Thompson was elected vice president; Alma K. Tyler, recording secretary; Jessie Goodsell, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, treasurer.

Housing Control Urged

Unless the Government takes over control of housing, people in Belfast will be without sufficient homes for the next 50 years, legislators of Northern Ireland claimed, in urging action. Dance halls are being built and movie theatres constructed by men who should be building homes. It was stated. It was proposed to borrow $2,000,000 from the British Government to provide subsidies of $2,000 a house for 10,000 houses a year.

Senate Test Votes Reveal Loan to Britain Will Pass Congress; Real Problem Now Is Minority

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 9—Test votes in the Senate indicate clearly that the loan to Great Britain will pass Congress. Amendments that are tacked on in the course of the measure's progress through the two Houses can be ironed out in conference. But the fact is that the vote against demanding permanent possession of bases at present is a reflection of the Senate's attitude toward the loan itself. A majority favors the idea. There's no question about that now.

The real problem is whether a minority, which is bent on using almost any tactics to defeat the will of the majority, will succeed presently in sidetracking the bill or in keeping it from ever getting into the conference committee stage.

The coal strike has undoubtedly given aid to the opponents of the British loan who want delay. There are some senators, favorable to the loan, who feel that the country should be protected against further damage to the economic system through the prolongation of the strike.

One thing seems sure—if the loan bill is set aside, it will not be without some agreement as to fixing a time for voting. If that kind of understanding is reached in the Senate, it is probable that some form of anti-strike legislation will then be passed. If the Senate ever acts, the House of Representatives would move quickly to accept the Senate measure.

The truth is the House of Representatives for several years has had a substantial majority in favor of legislation to cure monopolistic practices by labor unions that have closed shops. The Senate has repeatedly blocked action. The miners' union has complete control over the miners of the country and the insistence by the miners' chiefs on an acceptance of the Wagner Law has prevented serious strikes in the last decade. If the answer is in the negative, then the inference might be drawn that Mr. Barkley's expressed antipathy to legislation about strikes could be construed to mean that he favored a repeal of the Wagner Law—which, of course, he doesn't. His question illustrates the lack of realism surrounding the whole debate on labor legislation.

THE TEACHERS' UNION

Public school teachers are organizing. Probably no group needs "union" benefits more. Yet a Petrillos may soon be able to dictate public instruction of our children.

The American Federation of Teachers in many a city, especially along the east and west coasts has muscled in successfully. Its ranks are swollen with new members. In Denver, a city with comparatively little sentiment for unionization till war industries planted the germ, the A. F. of T. local has boosted its membership from 50 to 400 since December. Membership campaigns in other cities are chalking up records.

The A. F. of T. is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. While it is as old as the New Deal, it evidently is just now—in this first year after the winning of a war to guarantee individual freedom stomping to the seat of power. It enrolls teachers of public schools in all grades.

Probably no profession, including doctors, have been more unselfish more self-sacrificing in the building of America than public school teachers. Patiently, tolerantly they have pointed the way to higher standards of living while their own incomes denied them the fruits of the higher standards.

But breadth of vision, and unwillingness to bat for self-interests are being set aside. Although some teachers feel the profession is stooping when it accepts unionism; it appears likely that it won't be long till the A. F. of T. can swing its weight around with the ranks of the teachers. Once the propagandists, the preachers of greed and hate, get inside the door of an organization they almost invariably win.

I believe it will be only a matter of a few years at the outside

County Oil, Garage, Service Men to Meet

Ulster county oilmen, garage-men and service station operators, will meet May 15 at the Governor Clinton Hotel to discuss post-war problems of automotive taxation and the disposition of highway user revenue. Raymond W. Garraghan, chairman of the Ulster County Petroleum Industries Committee, announced today. The meeting also will elect new officers for the coming year.

Edward D. Cray of the New York Petroleum Industries Committee is to address the meeting.

Mr. Garraghan, urging every effort to further a demand for a constitutional amendment that will guarantee integrity of highway funds, noted that out of nearly $1,400,000 collected in taxes from motorists in the Empire State during the past 15 years, over $700,000,000 have been diverted to purposes unrelated to highways. With hundreds of thousands of motorists flocking to the mountains and lakes of the state in this first post-war year of vacation travel, it is estimated that highway revenues may reach an all-time high. Gasoline tax receipts for January this year are said to have been nearly a million and a half dollars above January a year ago, and fast approaching the mark of $5,145,270 set in January, 1941, Mr. Garraghan pointed out.

At the same time the board adopted a measure granting a 20 per cent cost-of-living increase to county employees. All employees, with the exception of elected or appointed officers, will receive the 20 per cent adjustment.

Bob Martin Pheasant Farm Is Saga of Man Who Loves Outdoors

Man Who Came to Kingston In 1906 to Deliver Peculiar Contraption Stays 40 Years

Greene County Native Has Become Top Man in Delicate Business of Raising Birds for Outstanding Game Clubs; 'Abandoned' Cars in 1940

Like the man who came to dinner, Robert S. ("Bob") Martin of the DeWitt Lake Road came to Kingston in 1906 ostensibly to deliver a revolutionary contraption known as the automobile. And he stayed for 40 years.

It was back in 1906 that Martin, a New Yorker transplanted from Greene county, was assigned by a metropolitan automobile agency to deliver a car to the Coykendall estate in this city. The city had never completely removed the lure of the Catskills from young Robert's blood and after his mission was accomplished he decided that Kingston was a pretty fair town. So he stayed.

But the story about Bob Martin today isn't associated entirely with the automobile industry, although he spent the greater part of his life in the work.

Quiet and Purposeful Job

The Martin pheasant farm on DeWitt Lake Road is one of the most amazing one-man operations in Ulster county. Few people in the area realize the extent and fascinating work that this modest lover of the soil has been doing for the past several years.

Mrs. Martin, trim and energetic and Bob's constant companion and helper in the delicate business of rearing pheasants, will tell you that through all the long years of his automobile business, Bob Martin always was saturated with a love for hunting, fishing and wildlife. Years before he began operating the pheasant farm he devoted endless hours to reading literature and studying conditions at various pheasant raising operations. He was determined some day to raise pheasants as his principal occupation. Hundreds of game lovers in Ulster county know that today Bob Martin stands at the pinnacle of a career he loves.

Had 10 Days to Deliver

Born in Lexington in Greene county, Martin went to New York at an early age. His highly developed mechanical inclinations attracted him to the newly born automobile trade. Little did he realize when he started on his journey to deliver the Coykendall car that he was on a one-way mission. His company gave him 10 days in which to deliver the vehicle. Obviously cars didn't travel very fast in those days.

Mr. Martin worked for the Coykendall estate from 1906 until 1919 when he started in the garage business at Martin's Garage located at Orchard street and Broadway. Later he sold out to Ed McGill. In succession came associations with Bill McGrath's Buck concern, Forsyth and Davis and then a business partnership with Ray Longendyke. Mr. Martin also served as sales manager for Millard's from 1934 until 1940 when he entered the pheasant rearing business on a serious scale.

Speaking of Pheasants

But what about the pheasant business? Well, Mr. Martin's friendly countenance, hovering over a sturdy well-knit frame that reflects a sturdy devotion to the outdoors, fairly sparkles when you mention the subject.

When Martin launched his business at the DeWitt Lake Crossroad rearing pens in 1939, he raised only 135 birds that year. Even the house in which he lives was of the simplest type. Today both show the remarkable effort of Mr. Martin's uncanny mechanical skill.

In 1940, Mr. Martin raised his total output of birds to approximately 1400 and since has operated annually with an output of English ring-necked pheasants. They are of the most beautiful birds on which a nimrod ever drew a bead. Two Ulster county clubs—the Ganahote Gun Club of Tuttle-town, near New Paltz, and the Utes Gun Club, about three miles south of New Paltz—purchase his entire output for a season. He handles smaller orders for area gun clubs and the New York State Conservation Department but generally speaking his pens are operated to supply the two major clubs.

Breeding Starts March 1

The breeding season starts about March 1 and the entire process requires about 16 weeks, never less than 14. The majority of birds delivered to the gun clubs average about 14 weeks and are picked up in September to be released for hunting purposes on closed reservations.

Has 75,000 Square Feet

The Martin rearing pens sprawl over an area of 75,000 square feet and are partitioned off to accommodate the birds in the various phases of development.

The mature birds are set up in small pens, with six hens and a cock in each section. After the groups about March 1, the first eggs are laid nearly four weeks later. The laying season is a short one—generally lasting through June—since eggs laid after that date cannot be used for hatching purposes for September pheasant delivery. These eggs can't be replaced and orders for the following fall generally are filled in February.

There is a 25 per cent loss in pheasants during the breeding operations. Rats, weather and occasionally diseases kill off varying numbers. The pheasant breeder must wage an eternal battle against rodents, while strict sanitary conditions are the preventives against disease.

Eggs Must Be Picked Often

When the pheasant hens are laying, the eggs must be picked up several times a day. Birds sometimes form egg-eating habits and large scale defections would result in disaster for the operator. Mr. Martin uses a variety of traps and poisons in combating the rat menace and reports great success. He says he would rather trap or poison a huge rat than make a big kill in the hunting field. Mr. Rat is a very deadly enemy.

Pheasant Is Choosy

It was discovered a long time ago that Mr. Pheasant can be pretty choosy about his food. No longer does he get a crack at the old-style mash diet. It was a simple thing for him to pick out the more lucrative elements and ignore elements designed to make a balanced diet. The solution was a special pellet type grain similar to vitamin tablets used by human beings. The pellet represents a completely balanced diet and Mr. Pheasant has to eat it all or go hungry.

The hatching temperatures for eggs range from 101-102 degrees Fahrenheit. The eggs are of uniform size, weight and intended to hatch in a single day. They are inclined that way, but the price of a dozen—just about enough to make a good ham and eggs sandwich—is so prohibitive as to discourage such use.

No 'Tame' Birds

The so-called tame bird isn't tame very long Mr. Martin tells you. "There is no such thing as a tame bird. These birds (no pun intended) grow tough and country-wise in a single day. Twenty-four hours after they have been released they are just as wily as the wild-grown birds."

In support of his theory, Mr. Martin pointed out that the nimrod bag only 62 to 68 per cent of the pheasants released annually on the closed reservations. The others manage to live for another day.

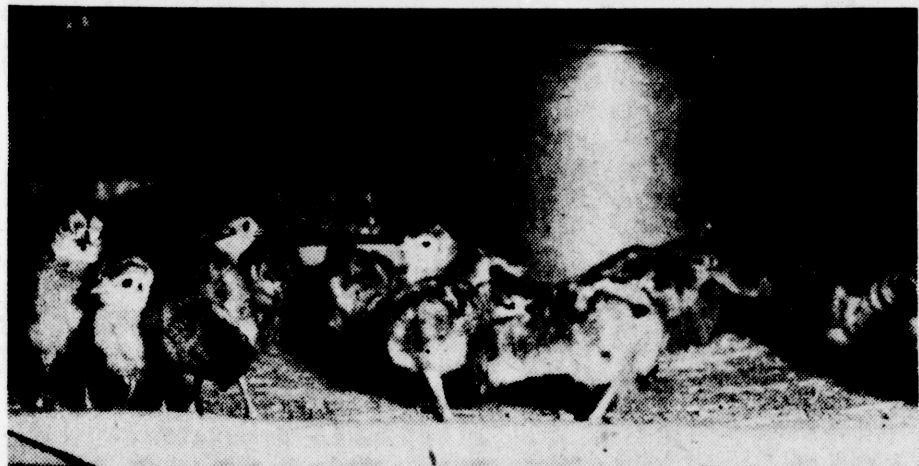

The various operations connected with the all-round development of the chick pheasants are multiple. Mr. Martin began his project on a modest scale, but has developed it to a high degree of perfection. Singlehanded he built a screen fence and the various pens over the 75,000 square feet of land comprising his estate. He devised his own methods of improving the hatching and breeding operations and in many instances effected mechanical improvements worthy of patents. He has modestly declined to submit applications for patents on various improvements, particularly an effective weed cutting machine, vital to keeping the areas around the pens free from predatory animals.

Approximately 300 eggs are placed in the hatchery every six or seven days. The hatching period requires about 24 days, which is three more than the number for ordinary baby chicks. The hatching principles are the same, with the eggs being placed on trays in electric incubators. The second step in the operation is the drying room where the baby birds are dried. While in the incubator the eggs are turned over four times a day.

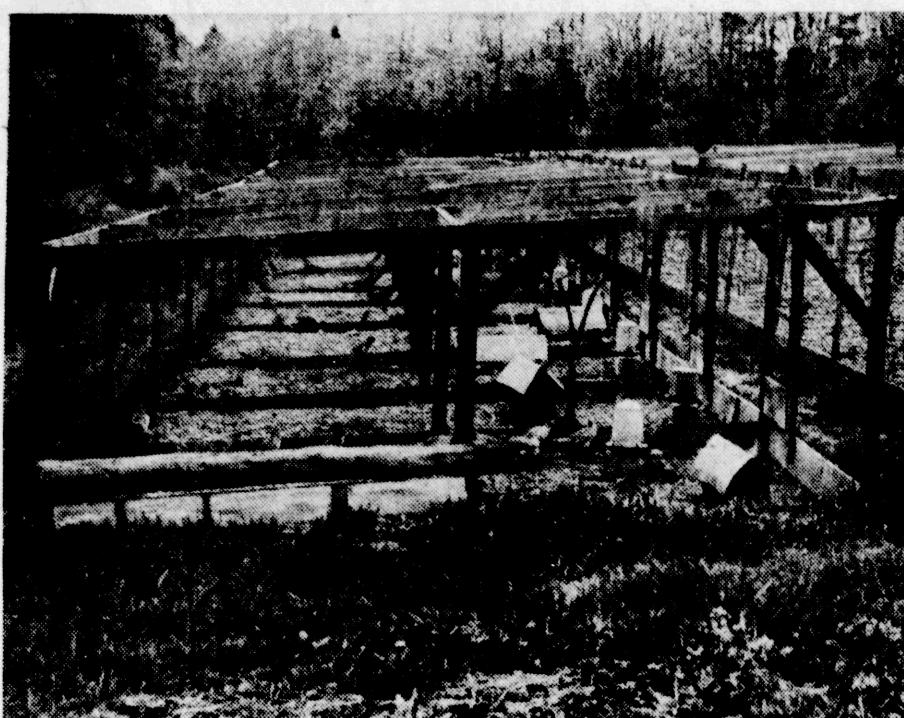

The breeding career for a pheasant starts when it is a day old. The "starting brooder" is the first step and birds are kept there for 10 days to two weeks depending on climatic conditions. They are fed a special type of food. Then comes a transfer to the brooder for six more weeks and advanced type of food. At the end of eight weeks, the bird is ready for the outside rearing pens where it remains until released to the gun clubs.

Feeding pheasants in their various stages of growth is an art in itself. Mr. Martin constantly experiments with new pheasant diets. The so-called starting feed is used for about three weeks, before the growing diet is used until the pheasants leave the rearing pens. Supplying water for 2000 pheasants is no ordinary operation. It demands thousands of feet of water piping and generators and pumps to keep a steady flow. Birds that are specially selected and produce an annual output of approximately 5,000 eggs. In the lower left is a view of a day-old chick. The average person would have some difficulty in distinguishing it from the average baby chick. The early plumage is somewhat more brilliant but characteristics of the chick are the same. In the lower right is a section of the Martin breeding pens that sprawl over an area of 75,000 square feet and are enclosed with mesh wire. These pens are divided and arranged to house the pheasants in their various stages of development. (Freeman Photos).

Bob Martin Explains Phases of Pheasant Raising

for breeding purposes live outdoors in winter.

"The reason for that is obvious," Mr. Martin says. "If they can't endure the winter weather they certainly won't have much chance when they live the wild life. We breed only sturdy birds and a sturdy pheasant can take anything in the way of weather that Ulster county has to offer."

Bred Show Dogs

Mr. Martin's successful venture in pheasant raising is but one side of this pleasant, self-effacing man of the outdoors. He and Mrs. Martin, the former Margaret Clearwater of Kingston, previously operated a widely known kennel and bred some of the finest show dogs in the business.

One of Best

Ulster county skeet and trap shooting experts regard Bob Martin as one of the best shots in Ulster county history. As a member of the now defunct Ulster County Gun Club he established shooting records that still stand. He topped the county title in 1934 and 1936 and shot his first 100 straight targets in 1934. He also compiled 50 straight in skeet.

Double A Classification

In 1934, Mr. Martin registered a percentage of 97.60 in shooting at 2100 registered 16-yard targets throughout New York state. His rating was high enough to qualify him for double A classification in national standings. He received the National Wild Life Restoration award and also a citation from the Wildlife Federation of America.

Expansion in the pheasant raising field would be a simple matter for Mr. Martin, but he says he is perfectly satisfied to continue at his present capacity. Many of his old friends and customers are continually urging him to return to the kennel business, but he has steadfastly refused to do so. Mr. and Mrs. Martin still keep a few dogs on the homestead and are particularly proud of two English setters—one called Jenny from Sports Princess Pride, one of the famous dogs in American show history and twice winner of national competitions in the show field.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin are known as charming hosts to a large circle of Ulster county friends who like to live close to the soil. They could sit back and rest on their laurels, but Bob Martin isn't built that way. The lure of the outdoors still burns brightly in his heart. He plans no expansion neither does he even dream of retirement.

Watch the pheasants go by after you miss one in the field next fall, but don't get discouraged. Perhaps he was one of those smart birds reared at the Martin farm. They don't fall so easily.

To meet an unprecedented need for surface craft, particularly in the early stages of the war, the Coast Guard acquired a total of approximately 2,100 reserve vessels of various types, practically all of which have been returned to their private owners.

G.I. Button Helps Get Votes; Leaders Uncertain on PAC

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Capital politicians decided today that Tuesday's primaries demonstrated the handy, vote-getting value a G.I. discharge button has for electioneering candidates.

But most of them professed inability to gauge from the primary results how valuable an endorsement of the C.I.O.'s Political Action Committee is going to be at the polls this year.

They had a puzzler in the Alabama campaign where James E. (Big Jim) Folsom, war veteran supported by the C.I.O.-P.A.C., led Lieut. Gov. Handy Ellis into a June 4 runoff for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination—equivalent to election.

Many politicians appeared to believe that Folsom's lead in a five man field could be attributed to his war service, rather than support of the C.I.O., which is just beginning a campaign to organize southern workers.

They noted that veterans who were permitted to vote without paying poll taxes, boosted the ballot total.

As further evidence of this trend, they cited the lead taken by Laurie C. Battle, a former service man and political type, over the C.I.O.'s friend Rep. Luther Patrick (D., Ala.). But in another Alabama race, Rep. Albert Rains (D., Ala.) had C.I.O. backing and led former Rep. Joe Starnes.

The C.I.O.-P.A.C. didn't do so well in Ohio, where Senator James W. Huffman won the Democratic renomination over two opponents. One of these was Marvin C. Harrison, an attorney with C.I.O.-P.A.C. backing, who ran third.

Huffman had the support of most of the railroad brotherhoods, which some Ohio politicians said probably was worth more to him than any C.I.O. approval. Indications were, however, that Huffman will get the C.I.O.'s backing when he opposes former Gov. John W. Bricker, the Republican senatorial nominee, in the November election.

Under Observation

Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—Former Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka has entered an American Army hospital for a medical examination which will decide whether he is in condition to be tried as an accused war criminal. Defense Attorney Kobushizo Kobayashi said Matsuoka was suffering from tuberculosis and neuritis.

The World Today

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst
Winston Churchill calls for a faithful understanding with Russia through the United Nations to avoid war and urges the English-speaking world and the western democracies of Europe to move together in creating true fellowship with the Soviet Union.

That's well spoken. Few will disagree with Churchill for, as he adds, "only in this way can catastrophe be avoided." However, when we sit down to figure out ways and means of creating fellowship with Russia we encounter difficulties.

The first obstacle we come up against is that it takes two to make a friendship, and that it involves at least a modicum of agreement on things which matter. There are as many points of disagreement between the western Allies on the one hand and the Russian on the other as there are seeds in a pomegranate.

The trend of the Big Four Conference of Foreign Ministers in Paris gives us a good indication of how the wind lies. The conferees have been unable to agree on any major point of the European peace treaties, and as a result Secretary of State Byrnes has proposed the drafting of these pacts be shifted to a 21-nation conference in Paris. The division of opinion has been between Russia and the Anglo-American pair, with France frequently trying to hold the balance between them. There has been a similar clash of viewpoints in the Security Council of U. N.

Well, what's the answer to all this disagreement? I believe that most of the differences arise from two main sources: These are ideology, and the tremendous turnover in the European spheres of influence of the great powers.

Easier Said Than Done...

In the matter of political ideologies it might seem that the Big Three could agree to disagree, but actually that's far easier said than done. The totalitarian rule of Communism is utterly opposed to the democracy of the western Allies. Also, more than one of the latter believe that Moscow is engaged in a systematic crusade to spread Communism around the world. It's a fear which has dogged the countries of western Europe ever since Moscow proclaimed its ideal of world revolution a generation ago. And, of course, the Soviet is equally sure that the western Allies are trying to hamstring legitimate Communist ambitions.

The dangers in the realignment of spheres of influence have been emphasized in this column before. A tremendous vacuum has been created in Europe by the disappearance of Germany and Italy as powers. That vacuum must be filled, and Russia is surging into it. Britain finds her position both on the continent and in the Mediterranean heavily challenged. He would be a rash prophet who predicted that this battle of giants could be halted before the realignment of domination has run its full course. The best one can do is pray that the turnover can be effected without another war.

The great changes have been accompanied by vast secrecy. That naturally has created violent suspicions—and suspicions are breeders of trouble. Report has it in Paris that the United States and Britain have been considering the idea of insisting that Russia lift the lid of secrecy from eastern Europe so that the rest of the world can get a look. One wonders just what good that would do, for we know we should find that Moscow has consolidated the whole of that vast area, and the Balkans clear down as far as Greece and Turkey, into the Red sphere of influence. That's a fait accompli.

So as previously remarked, it isn't easy to figure out ways of

and copper pipe and also a quantity of lead was reported missing from the hotel.

While questioning Lewis and Van Steenburgh the officers were told, they stated, that entrance to the Preston house on Mill street had also been a job of the two. There after forcing an entrance articles of clothing and skates were taken.

During the investigation all of the articles taken from Miss Burnett's home were recovered either from the uptown store or by Detective Cramer and Captain Stoudt from the Van Steenburgh residence.

Detective Cramer said that while entrance to the recreation hall at Lawton Park had also been admitted by the two, nothing was missing from the hall.

Lewis and Van Steenburgh were later arraigned before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the town of Ulster on a charge of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry growing out of the Burnett home entry. Both were held for action of the grand jury when pleas of innocent were entered. The two were brought back to jail. Detective Cramer stated today that warrants would be filed against Lewis and Van Steenburgh today as a result of the city investigations.

C.A.A. Engineers Will Confer on Airport Planning

Communities Will Be Visited to Determine Needs, Congressman LeFevre Is Advised

Congressman Jay LeFevre has just been advised by the Civil Aeronautics Administration that when Congress votes money for planning under the Federal Airport Bill just passed by the Congress and now awaiting presidential approval, Civil Aeronautics Administration engineers will be sent into the field to confer with state and local authorities for the purpose of determining their local needs. The requirements listed by the C.A.A. in the airport survey report submitted to Congress in November were only tentative and were not based on detailed surveys. It will be necessary to revise these studies in the light of developments of the last year and a half.

The earliest date the Civil Aeronautics Administration can hope to obtain such funds would be July first.

It was emphasized that planning will be decentralized as much as possible into the nine Civil Aeronautics Administration regions, one of which is New York City. In addition there will be district offices, approximately one for every state set up to bring the federal agency closer to the general public.

Meanwhile cities, towns, communities and states are urged to continue their airport planning. Coincident with this surveying of local needs, certain legal actions must be taken by states and cities in all of which the C.A.A. will be directly interested.

Only when these preliminary matters are attended to and funds are appropriated for grants can applications be received and processed by the C.A.A. Regulations and forms for submission of applications will be prepared as soon as possible now that terms of the law are known.

Civil Aeronautics Administration officials estimate that actual work cannot be commenced on any significant number of projects before the next construction season, that is, April of 1947. It will take that much time to accomplish the preliminaries. Interruptions by delegations to Washington pressing for action on specific projects will serve only to slow down progress. The program will be administered largely through the regional offices of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Hervey White and Maverick Topic at Ulster Historical Meeting Here on Saturday

The address given by Henry Morton Robinson of Woodstock before the Ulster County Historical Society, at its Spring Luncheon Meeting Saturday, was widely acclaimed. He told the story of the life of Hervey White, the founder and spoke in part as follows:

We are met today to consider the life and works of a man not unknown to fame—Hervey White, who for 50 years spread a special glow over the history of Ulster County. The quality of that glow has been variously appraised and estimated. Hervey White, there is no question about it, is one of those unforgettable characters whose life and character. I have heard him appraised as a generous friend—as a humanitarian friend of the artist; as a plain liver and high thinker. I cannot pretend to analyze the secrets of Hervey's character, but I can give you a clue to it.

Consider the years in which Hervey lived; born in 1866, died in 1944. During the first 50 years of his life the entire energy of the United States was turned to the pursuit of industry and commerce. At a time when the characteristic money became the characteristic occupation of the United States and its citizens, Hervey White, almost alone, single-handed, turned his back on this kind of life and led a few artists and a few friends in quite the opposite direction—the direction of poverty, of dedication to an aesthetic ideal that has never been equalled in this country. Never been approached.

Perhaps something of his background will throw some illumination on his nature. He was born in a small town in Iowa, shortly after the Civil War. That but had no windows in it; it had squares, some, vivacious, highly-talented woman named Vivian Peavane. They had two children, and then came the nature of the conflict. Apparently the question was, should Hervey leave the Maverick and go to New York, take a job teaching school, and become one of the millions, or should he stay there and pursue his ideals. He made the choice, and Vivian left him taking the two children with her. He grieved for 45 years for the two children. The story has a happy ending, for shortly before he died, both of those boys came back, realizing what a great man their father was. They came back and paid filial tribute to him and are happy to do so now.

Characteristically, Hervey does not mention Munsterberg, and the greatest figures who were then active in academic life; he mentions the poor teamsters who tried to get a part-time education, the struggling artist who lived in Cambridgeport. He told me a story of the poorest man he knew, a man who lived on a cent a day, and this was a close friend of Hervey. The way he lived was as follows. He would go down to a restaurant, ask for a penny's worth of bread crusts and having been given the bread crusts he would then ask as charity for a bowl of hot water, which would be given him. He would repair to a table, add cat-snip and mustard which were free. This was the student's dinner, and sometimes believe Hervey may have been telling me about himself.

After leaving Harvard Hervey took his Wanderjahr. He walked all through Italy. He was the scholar-gypsy, with a crust of bread in his pocket and his clothes slung on a stick in a handkerchief and lived as a peasant. He returned to the United States to take up work in Hull House, at a time when Jane Adams was at the head of that social organization. Jane Adams immediately saw that Hervey White was a man of unusual talent and gave him a high place in her council. He had charge of the library; was in charge of the library. He was particularly interested in the underprivileged foreign elements of Chicago. At the same time, after he had left Hull House he would go home to his barely furnished room and write with an oil lamp until early morning. In this way he finished his first novel.

Bad Piece of Luck
Now he had a singularly bad piece of luck, which influenced his whole subsequent career. The first novel was published, "Difficulties." It went into two editions and Small, Maynard of Boston immediately took his second novel, which was hailed by Theodore Dreiser and other critics. "Quick Sand," a third novel, has been called by great American novelists. In "Quick Sand" he tells the story of a young artist meeting an economic challenge of American life—he wants to be a writer, a pure artist. He does not want to give into this economic way; he becomes a journalist, must marry, has a child, room. He is a husband, a father, and it's too much for him, so he hangs himself. This very fine novel, which was a study of the plight of the artist, was being well received when Small, Maynard went into bankruptcy.

All of Hervey's books disappeared off the shelves of America. Four books; those books were finally found decaying in some cellar. Hervey was very discouraged. About this time he fell in with a strange, rather remarkable man, Ralph Whitehead. Whitehead was supposed to be, I believe was the richest commoner in England. He had been influenced by Ruskin, William Morris and others. Seeing Hervey coming, in all its pair to some wilderness, and set up our looms and our hand presses, and there let us make dyes, weave tapestries, print books—all showing the loving marks of the aged Hervey White and two others, Carl Felix Lindlin and Bolton Brown to traverse the United States looking for ideal sites for such a colony.

In 1902 three men entered the Village of Woodstock, coming down the slopes of Ohayo Mountain. These men had found the ideal site for Ralph's colony—the glorious arch of the sky, the folds of the Catskills, the cheap land of the Catskills, which was quietly bought up at a good price. The lots were put together and Byrdcliffe was started. Whitehead had a great deal of money. He brought in great machines for weaving, whole shops for carpentry and metal working. There were book binderies and there were kindred things. He told that those early days in Byrdcliffe were the very peak of Bohemian life in the United States, with a touch of piety thrown in.

They functioned for a couple of years. At this point Hervey fell out with Ralph Whitehead. It wasn't a quarrel, it was a difference. Hervey said, "I'm going to establish my own place, on a much humbler scale." He went into the valley and found the Van Hervey farm, 96 acres for $1,500. Hervey never had $1,500, so he took as his partner Mr. Van der Loo. They each put up $500 and there was a mortgage remaining of $500. That mortgage is still on the Maverick. They had never gotten enough money to pay it. However, they did take title to it. Van der Loo was pursuing a hand in the atmosphere of the simple living and high thinking, so he went back to Holland, leaving Hervey in sole charge.

Hervey White was a single voice crying in the wilderness. He had no money, no reputation; his books were all getting greenmold in the publisher's care. It must have taken a great deal of courage in the next 10 years to stay alone in his house, "The Bear Camp," as he called it, and continue along the path he had mapped out. His material life was unfortunate. He married a handsome, vivacious, highly-talented woman named Vivian Peavane. They had two children, and then came the nature of the conflict. Apparently the question was, should Hervey leave the Maverick and go to New York, take a job teaching school, and become one of the millions, or should he stay there and pursue his ideals. He made the choice, and Vivian left him taking the two children with her. He grieved for 45 years for the two children. The story has a happy ending, for shortly before he died, both of those boys came back, realizing what a great man their father was. They came back and paid filial tribute to him and are happy to do so now.

In 1910 Hervey established the Maverick press. His feeling was, since I can get no one to publish my work, I will publish it myself. I think it was a mistake. Being a part editor, I realize the things an editor does to a manuscript. I believe if Hervey had not published his own work, he would have gotten them published by reputable publishers. A stream of work came off that press—"Tintin Tom," "Verses from an Old Man's Garden," you'll find them all listed in Who's Who. He wrote his autobiographies, plays, novels. When I came to his house to live I found whole barrels of manuscript plays, literally floor barrels full.

A Flood of Musicians
In the meantime others were attracted to the colony. First came a flood of musicians. Right after the last war, Pierre Hottot, who became a first musician in the Metropolitan Opera, was one of the first and gathered others around—Georges Barrere, the greatest flutist, and Horace Britt who is still a leading cellist—all of these men began to give concerts about 1941.

These Maverick concerts, there was never anything like them in the world, in an idealistic setting, in a rustic concert hall. A unit of these string instruments playing Bach, Beethoven and the masters, could be heard once a week. The Maverick concerts have the longest history, of uninterrupted performance of any musical string institution in America. Then came a wave of painters after World War I—Arnold Blanch, Harry Gittlieb, Carl Walters, the potter and others. Hervey's offer was: If you are an artist, if you are poor, come on to me. I'll give you a house, I'll let you charge groceries to me. I have no money, but there is plenty of wood on these hillsides and we can get a year's credit at the grocer and you can take a picture, or maybe you'll sell a piece of pottery. They came.

I first saw Hervey White exactly 20 years ago this week-end. He was at that time a man 58 years old, tall, spare, with thin aesthetic visage, a white Van Dyke beard and flowing white hair. He was dressed in a manner that I had never seen a man dressed in before. He wore a Russian tunic, a sash around his waist, blue pants or burgundy-colored pants, whatever they were, and came out to greet me, who was looking only for a cottage, with an elegance and a courtliness of such variance with the surroundings that I have not yet gotten over the shock of his manners. I suppose that Hervey White has been the single greatest influence in my life. He showed me a cottage and said, "You may have this place." If you can't pay rent, that'll be fine, if you can't skip it. As a matter of fact I could afford to pay a small rent. He said, "There isn't much of a roof." There wasn't, it was like a colander.

Maverick Festivals
Mr. Robinson went on to describe in interesting detail, the group at the Maverick and their lives, from the year 1926, the happy times they had and the work they did.

He said that the Maverick festivals resulted from his suggestion, as a means of raising money to pay for the sinking of a 2100 foot well. He noted that there's a man here, Alexis Kosloff, who helped put on one of the first festivals, one of the most remarkable performances of "The Arabian Nights." We got the money to pay for the well and life could go on again. The festivals continued to go on. Every year we would put on something different. Unfortunately large numbers of undesirable came, and what started out as a performance of innocence and joy, ended up by being a brawl. We saw this coming on, but it was hard to give up the festivals.

How did Hervey regard himself, as he neared the last days? I'm going to read you a short paragraph from the Harvard College, and Hervey's yearbook's fiftieth anniversary, the class of 1894. Hervey, speaks of himself. He says, "It was Frank Bowles" (Bowles was Secretary at Harvard) "It was Frank Bowles who warned me that if I went in for pure literature, there wasn't one chance in 10,000 of success. I took the chance and missed. After finding a good publisher for four of my books and realizing my failure, I bought a hand press and printed my own. I started an art and craft colony known as 'The Maverick' which offered to young talent a chance to earn its living until its recognition. This has made me many friends and given me a reasonable amount of satisfaction. As for pure literature, it still holds all my devotion and I'm satisfied with that too." It's a curiously reserved statement of happiness. He certainly felt that the kind of life he wanted had passed him by.

The only quarrel I ever had with Hervey was about my journalistic tendencies. He couldn't understand how a man could write for money. I think he did get some money for a piece he did. He said, "they pay for these things." It was for a poem, and a very good poem. It was to—I'm going to read you the poem. It was a poem written to my oldest daughter when she was born, "To Helen, On Coming Into The World." This contains some of Hervey's philosophy too, and pessimism.

"To Helen, On Coming Into The World"

We wonder why, who sit with 70 summers on our head
We heard you cry, and clamor at the gates of life to be let in
Once you begin, we'll grant, you may like it
But instead of entering here at all to softly lie cradled in the unconscious
Were it not a lovelier thing, than earning daily bread
If such shall be your lot, or waiting
So falls joy expectantly to sing
And once it's gained
But you have attained for all we know
The dearest gift to live
Keep it and live
Far better, I should sing a lullaby
For sleep is sleep to youth
And childhood's best, lies in the West
And all the stars that ply their treaded paths throughout the sky
May now be singing, "Blessed be she, who snuggles in her new-born
Built by her parents,—guarded hopefully.
This is a great lyric—not because it's written to my child, but it is a fine lyric. It's an opinion of those who know most about these things.

Coterie Has Final Meeting

Plans Annual Outing

Coterie met with Mrs. Raymond Van Valkenburgh Saturday afternoon for its final study meeting of the year. Plans were made for the annual outing to be held May 18 at the Old Fort in New Paltz. Officers for the coming year were installed: Mrs. Charles A. Terwilliger, president; Miss Gladys G. Smith, secretary; and Mrs. Frank Thompson, treasurer.

Captain Meller, a friend of Capt. Helena Clearwater, who is still serving in the Army Nurse Corps, addressed the group briefly on her experiences in China during the early years of the war with Japan. Mrs. Louis Beers gave the paper for the day on "Jefferson's Little Mountain." In introducing her subject, Mrs. Beers said that Jefferson had two loves in his life, his wife and his home in which he incorporated many of the details found on his trip abroad in France and Italy. The two extension wings to the main part of the mansion are built like separate buildings with connecting porches.

One of his ingenious inventions was a clock which could be read from without or within. In connection with it were panels down either side of the wall marked for the days of the week. Weights came down from the mechanism of the clock each day until on Saturday they dropped into the floor. On either side of the dining room mantel are small dumb-waiters concealed in the paneling which conveyed wines from the cellar. He also made unusual tables, one which revolved and another which could be adjusted to any height and tilt for architectural work or writing. He also created a weather vane whose marking of the direction of the wind could be read from his desk. Jefferson once wrote to a friend, "All my wishes end, where I hope my days will end, at Monticello."

The meeting closed with a social hour during which the hostess served refreshments.

Urge Reappointment

To the Editor: As returning veterans, it is very disillusioning to find that conditions on the home front have come to such a pass. It has been our good fortune to have had Clarence S. Rowland as a friend for many years. During that time we have had the opportunity to witness the many things he has done, that have served as inspiration to the youth of Kingston. These are times when young people need the moral support that we know Mr. Rowland has always given.

Anyone who has ever engaged in athletic contests, realizes the 100 per cent cooperation, fair play and good sportsmanship. These are the traits which we have always known Mr. Rowland to possess and encourage in others.

Some of us had the privilege to attend the High School Athletic Association Banquet on May 4, which was an inspiration to all who attended. It is interesting to note that Mr. Rowland was the originator of these annual banquets.

We would like those that know Mr. Rowland, and what he means to the youth of this city, to take an active part, by writing the mayor urging his reappointment to the Board of Education of the City of Kingston.

Very sincerely,

Parking Meters

May 8th, 1946
Editor, The Freeman
I did not say at any time that I do not approve of parking meters.

I stated and still say that parking meters will not relieve the congested condition of the business streets of Kingston.

I furthermore said and still reaffirm my views that there would be plenty of room to park if the clerks, merchants, insurance men, office workers and others employed in business areas, would park their cars daily in a space arranged for them by merchants and employers in their respective working zones.

I wish to again state that if loading zones were arranged particularly on North Front and Wall streets, that you would absolutely eliminate the present congestion, created by trucks that have to make store deliveries.

The article in May 7th Sunday News bears out the point I brought out in the Public Hearing that many spaces would be occupied by car owners for 3 and

Leonard and Burns Attend Dinner for Senator Condon

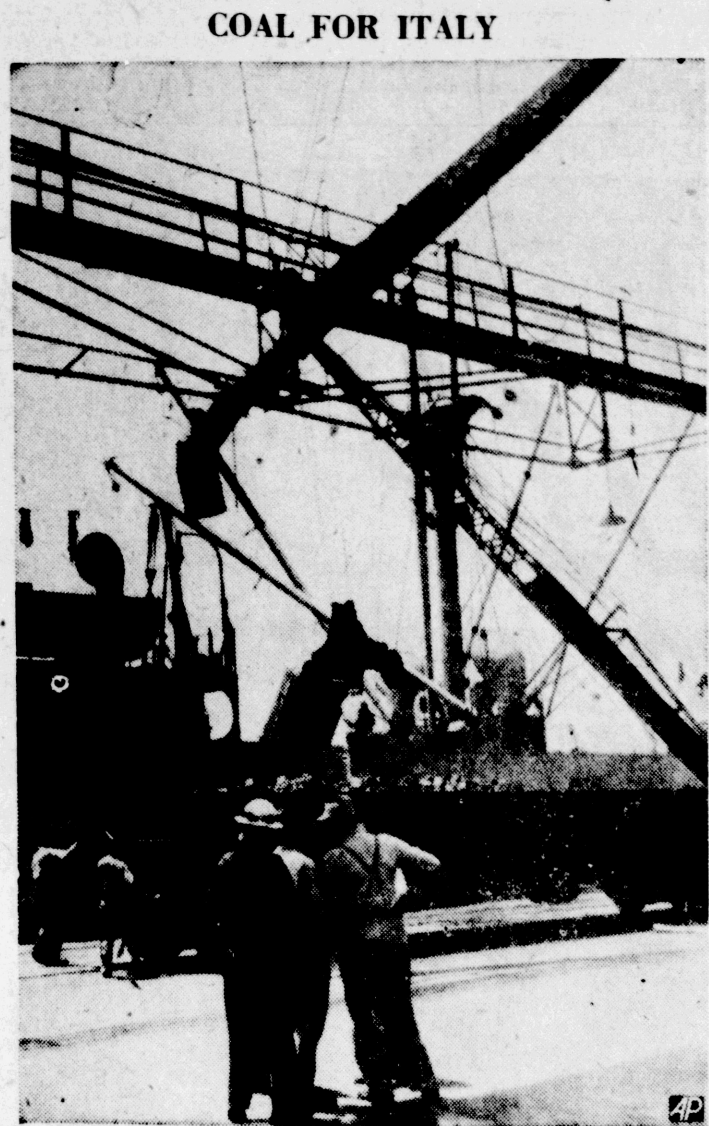

N. Y. State Legislator Tells Patrolmen He'll Always Be Behind Their Interests

From the time he was a youngster and a favorite nephew of his uncle on the Yorker's police force, Senator William J. Condon has been interested in the welfare of law enforcement officers, he told a group of 500 police officers and guests at a testimonial dinner in White Plains last night.

The dinner, arranged as a testimonial for the New York state legislator from Westchester county who introduced the 25-year retirement bill, which was vetoed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, was presided over by Leonard, past president of the Police Benevolent Association, and James F. Burns, treasurer, also Capt. William J. Geary of the local fire department.

In his speech outlining the reasons why a patrolman should be eligible for retirement after 25 years of public service during which he is forced to undergo rigorous duties and make various sacrifices, Senator Condon told the assembled policemen that he would never fail to champion their cause.

The senator concluded his talk with the remark that being friendly to all uniformed men should be considered a duty to all public officials and, he added, that he has always considered their friendship a great asset.

Safety Conference Aims At Cutting Car Accidents

Washington, May 9 (P)—President Truman's highway safety conference worked today on the technical job of applying the brakes to the nation's accelerating motor death toll.

Eight committees of experts concentrated on as many aspects of the task with the twin purpose of unifying traffic regulations and of bringing public opinion squarely behind a campaign to make the roads safe.

The committee work included studies on accident records, education, enforcement, road engineering, laws and ordinances, motor vehicle administration, organized public support and public information.

Saying that the toll of death and injury already has reached pre-war proportions, President Truman laid down the conference goal yesterday with these words: "The nation cannot afford and will not tolerate this tragic waste of human resources."

Siamese Twins May Not Be Able to Walk Upright

Portland, Ore., May 9 (P)—The names of Siamese twins born here to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hulse may be given today if the 32-year-old mother can make her choice for the two blonde girls, the Portland General Hospital reported.

Meanwhile the twins, joined near the base of the spine in a manner that the attending physician said may prevent the girls walking upright if they survive, were taking nourishment normally. They will be three days old at 3 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) today.

Dr. Joseph V. Springer, who made the delivery, reported each child has a separate spinal cord, but they are fused firmly at the lower ends in such a way that until X-ray pictures were examined it was not certain which set of legs belong to which twin. Their heads are at almost opposite ends along a line, Dr. Springer said.

Twin girls, joined facing each other, were born dead at the same hospital in May, 1937, the hospital reported. An American Medical Association spokesman at Chicago said that only 13 cases of Siamese births had been verified between the years of 1100 and 1936. He reported two girls, joined at the abdomen, were born at Coldwater, Ariz., August 26, 1945, died within a few days.

Flasher Start Motors

Five employees in a dairy company's plant in Cambridge, New Zealand, had a weird experience during a recent thunderstorm, accompanied by huge hailstones and vivid lightning. The lightning suddenly started a dozen motors running. Then another flash struck the main switchboard and flames shot forth. A bucket brigade extinguished the fire.

Auto Damaged As It Left Road

An Oldsmobile sedan proceeding toward Kingston over the Rosendale road, left the highway Tuesday and plowed down the embankment on the south side of the Wallkill Valley railroad crossing, just outside the city line. No report of the accident was made to the sheriff's office. The car suffered a damaged front end and two of the tires were flat. (Freeman Photo.)

County Oil Garage.

Service Men to Meet

Ulster county oilmen, garage-men and service station operators, will meet May 15 at the Governor Clinton Hotel to discuss post-war problems of automotive taxation and the disposition of highway user revenue. Raymond W. Garaghan, chairman of the Ulster County Petroleum Industries Committee, announced today. The meeting, also will elect new officers for the coming year.

Edward D. Gray of the New York Petroleum Industries Committee is to address the meeting.

Mr. Garaghan, urging every effort to further a demand for a constitutional amendment that will guarantee integrity of highway funds, noted that out of nearly $1,400,000,000 collected in taxes from motorists in the Empire State during the past 15 years, over $700,000,000 have been diverted to purposes unrelated to highways.

With hundreds of thousands of motorists flocking to the mountains and lakes of the state in this first post-war year of vacation travel, it is estimated that highway revenues may reach an all-time high. Gasoline tax receipts for January this year are said to have been nearly a million and a half dollars above January a year ago, and fast approaching the mark of $5,145,270 set in January, 1941, Mr. Garaghan pointed out.

At the same time the board adopted a measure granting a 20 per cent cost-of-living increase to county employees. All employees, with the exception of elected or appointed officers, will receive the 20 per cent adjustment.

Public Health Work Done in Marbletown

High Falls, May 8—The May meeting of the Marbletown Public Health Nursing Committee was held in St. Peter's Parish Hall, Stone Ridge, Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Ernest S. Jansen, presiding. A report of the recently held "Tag Day" was given by the chairman, Mrs. Edward Muller, Jr. To date, nearly $100 has been cleared. Mrs. Muller thanked the schools in particular for their splendid cooperation.

Mrs. Coddington, Public Health Nurse, stated that the dental program was getting under way very nicely. Five children have had appointments with the dentist and more are to go soon. Parents of over 30 children of the ages, five, six and seven, have expressed their desire to avail themselves of this opportunity. Mrs. Coddington is trying to impress upon parents of small children the importance of early care, especially the need of having six-year molars cared for.

After a discussion, a motion was made and carried that letters be sent to the clerk of the town board and the health officer expressing hope that they would do something constructive toward improving conditions of the "dump" located near the village of High Falls. It was felt by the committee that the present condition was detrimental to the community and the town because of appearance, offensive odors and as a breeding place for flies, mosquitoes and rats which infest the neighborhood; also as a menace to transportation along the highway.

Dr. B. F. Mattison of the State Health Department, Kingston, gave a very interesting talk on "Cancer." He told the group that one out of every seven deaths last year was due to cancer and that such deaths might be avoided in approximately 90 per cent of the times had treatment been given early. He deplored the fact that cancer is so painless in its early stages and thus misleads people as to its seriousness.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better.

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pen and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with a burning or stinging sensation shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 18 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Historical Society Gets Adjutant Bevier's Book

Through the generosity of Warren G. Sherwood of Highland and Miss Edna L. Jacobson of the State Library, the Ulster County Historical Society has been presented with a photostatic copy of the Revolutionary orderly book of David Bevier, adjutant of the Third Regiment of Ulster county.

After the burning of Kingston, October 16, 1777, regimental headquarters were established at Hurley. The first entry in the orderly book is dated July 20, 1776 and the last October 23, 1777.

David Bevier in 1800 built the house in Marlborough now owned by the Historical Society.

City Sewage Plant Might Be Ready Sometime in Fall

structed at a reasonable cost as compared with the cost of similar plants in municipalities comparable to Kingston throughout the country.

Total Cost Not Estimated
Owing to the fact that the W.P.A. records are not available, the city engineer pointed out that it was impossible to estimate the actual amount that had been spent in the construction of the plant and the connecting sewers.

Forced to Build Plant

Under a ruling of the State Health Department some years ago cities and municipalities along the Hudson river, who have been diverting the sewage into the river or tributary streams, were ordered to discontinue the practice by erecting sewage treatment plants. The greater part of the sewage of Kingston for years has been deposited in the Rondout creek.

With the building of the sewage plant here it was also necessary to construct diversion sewers at the points where the sewers emptied into the Rondout creek.

A new sewer line has been built from Wilbur to the plant, and the Broadway and Hasbrouck avenue sewers will be hooked into this new line as soon as the plant is ready for operation.

The diversion chamber under construction on Wilbur avenue is estimated to take care of 60 percent of all the sewage of the city, diverting it from emptying into the Rondout creek, and conveying the sewage to the East Strand plant.

Roosevelt Park Sewer
The Roosevelt Park outfall sewer emptying into the Esopus creek to date has cost the city $94,045.14. This sewer is practically complete with the exception of about 125 feet which will pass under the city's water mains, which supply the city with water. This outfall sewer was started as a W.P.A. project in 1942. It is being built to take care of the drainage for the entire area whenever a storm sewer system is constructed in the Roosevelt Park section.

City Engineer Hallinan said that the construction of this outfall sewer had proven one of the worst headaches ever encountered in the city as in excavating for the sewer the workmen had to work in water that was knee-deep.

To build this sewer has meant the triumph of manpower over nature's obstacles.

Postal Embargo Ordered by U. S.

Packages Must Weigh No More Than 11 Pounds Each

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The Post Office Department today ordered an embargo on parcel post shipments weighing more than 11 pounds, with certain exceptions.

The department said the embargo, effective at midnight, was ordered as a result of the coal strike and curtailment of rail service.

Four classes of goods are exempt: Live day-old poultry, seeds, plants and other nursery stock; eggs, butter and other perishable food products; and medicines, drugs, surgical instruments and surgical dressings.

The department said the normal weight limitation on parcel post is 70 pounds. The size limitation is 100 inches, combined length and girth.

Parcels covered by the embargo will not be accepted for mailing if they weigh more than 11 pounds or if their combined length and girth exceed 66 inches.

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan said in a statement that he acted at the request of the Office of Defense Transportation and the Association of American Railroads.

Philadelphia, May 8 (AP)—It looked like a circus in downtown Philadelphia today as 8,000 to 9,000 men and women stormed the Reading Terminal Market to buy butter. The New Jersey Federated Egg Producers Cooperative put 12,000 pounds up for sale at the ceiling price of 55 cents a pound—one pound to a customer. Another 8,000 pounds were promised later in the day. "We're out to break the black market," declared Irwin Kramer, the cooperatives sales manager.

Bob Martin Pheasant Farm Is Saga of Man Who Loves Outdoors

Man Who Came to Kingston In 1906 to Deliver Peculiar Contraption Stays 40 Years

Greene County Native Has Become Top Man in Delicate Business of Raising Birds for Outstanding Game Clubs; 'Abandoned' Cars in 1940

Like the man who came to dinner, Robert S. ("Bob") Martin of the DeWitt Lake Road came to Kingston in 1906 ostensibly to deliver a revolutionary contraption known as the automobile. And he stayed for 40 years.

It was back in 1906 that Martin, a New Yorker transplanted from Greene county, was assigned by a metropolitan automobile agency to deliver a car to the Coykendall estate in this city. The city had never completely removed the lure of the Catskills from young Robert's blood and after his mission was accomplished he decided that Kingston was a pretty fair town. So he stayed.

But the story about Bob Martin today isn't associated entirely with the automobile industry, although he spent the greater part of his life in the work.

Quiet and Purposeful Job

The Martin pheasant farm on DeWitt Lake Road is one of the most amusing one-man operations in Ulster county. Few people in the area realize the extent and fascinating work that this modest lover of the soil has been doing for the past several years.

Mrs. Martin, trim and energetic and Bob's constant companion and helper in the delicate business of rearing pheasants, will tell you that through all the long years of his automobile business, Bob Martin always was saturated with a love for hunting, fishing and wildlife. Years before he began operating the pheasant farm he devoted endless hours to reading literature and studying conditions at various pheasant raising operations. He was determined some day to raise pheasants as his principal occupation. Hundreds of game lovers in Ulster county know that today Bob Martin stands at the pinnacle of a career he loves.

Had 10 Days to Deliver

Born in Lexington in Greene county, Martin went to New York at an early age. He highly developed mechanical inclinations attracted him to the newly born automobile trade. Little did he realize when he started on his journey to deliver the Coykendall car that he was on a one-way mission. His company gave him 10 days in which to deliver the vehicle. Obviously cars didn't travel very fast in those days.

Mr. Martin worked for the Coykendall estate from 1906 until 1919 when he started in the garage business at Martin's Garage located at Orchard street and Broadway. Later he sold out to Ed McGill. In succession came associations with Bill McGrath's Buick concern, Forsyth and Davis and then a business partnership with Ray Longendyke. Mr. Martin also served as sales manager for Millard's from 1934 until 1940 when he entered the pheasant raising business on a serious scale.

Speaking of Pheasants

But what about the pheasant business? Well, Mr. Martin's friendly countenance, hovering over a sturdy well-knit frame that reflects years of devotion to the outdoors, fairly sparkles when you mention the subject.

When Martin launched his business at the DeWitt Lake Crossroad rearing pens in 1939, he raised only 135 birds that year. Even the house in which he lives is of the simplest type. Today both show the remarkable effort of Mr. Martin's uncanny mechanical skill.

In 1940, Mr. Martin raised his total output of birds to approximately 1400 and since has continued annually with an output of 1500 pheasants. They are of the English (ring-necked) species, some of the most beautiful birds on which a nimrod ever drew a feat.

The Ulster county clubs—the Game and Gun Club of Tuttleton, near New Paltz, and the Uco Gun Club, about three miles south of New Paltz—purchase his entire output for a season. He handles smaller orders for area gun clubs and the New York State Conservation Department but generally speaking his pens are operated to supply the two major clubs.

Breeding Starts March 1
The breeding season starts about March 1 and the entire process takes about 16 weeks, never less than 14. The majority of birds delivered to the gun clubs average about 14 weeks and are released in September to be reared for hunting purposes on the reservations.

Has 75,000 Square Feet
The Martin rearing pens sprawl over an area of 75,000 square feet and are partitioned off to accommodate the birds in the various phases of development.

The rearing birds are set up in small pens, six hens and a cock in each section. After the eggs have been divided into pens about March 1, the first eggs are laid nearly four weeks later. The laying season is a water piping and generators and pumps to keep a steady flow.

ter that date cannot be used for hatching purposes for September pheasant delivery. These eggs can't be replaced and orders for the following fall generally are filed in February.

There is a 25 per cent loss in pheasants during the breeding operations. Rats, weather and occasionally diseases kill off varying numbers. The pheasant breeder must wage an eternal battle against rodents, while strict sanitary conditions are the preventives against disease.

Eggs Must Be Picked Often

When the pheasant hens are laying, the eggs must be picked up several times a day. Birds in Ulster county sometimes form egg-eating habits and large scale defections would result in disaster for the operator. Mr. Martin uses a variety of traps and poisons in combating the rat menace and reports great success. He says he would rather trap or poison a huge rat than make a big kill in the hunting field. Mr. Rat is a very deadly enemy.

Pheasant Is Choosy

It was discovered a long time ago that Mr. Pheasant can be pretty choosy about his food. No longer does he get a crack at the old-style mash diet. It was a simple thing for him to pick out the more lucrative elements and ignore elements designed to make a balanced diet. The solution was a special pellet type grain similar to vitamin tablets used by human beings. The pellet represents a completely balanced diet and Mr. Pheasant has to eat it all or go hungry.

The hatching temperatures for eggs range between 101-102 degrees Fahrenheit. The eggs are laid in a warm, sunny place, an ounce. They are edible, if you are inclined that way, but the price of a dozen—just about enough to make a good ham and eggs sandwich—is so prohibitive as to discourage such use.

No 'Tame' Birds

The so-called tame bird isn't tame very long Mr. Martin tells you. "There is no such thing as a tame bird. These birds (no pun intended) get tough and country wise in a single day. Twenty-four hours after they have been released they are just as wily as the wild-grown birds."

In support of his theory, Mr. Martin pointed out that the nimrod bag only 62 to 68 per cent of the pheasants released annually on the closed reservations. The others manage to live for another day.

The various operations connected with the all-round development of the chick pheasants are multiple. Mr. Martin began his project on a modest scale, but has developed it to a high degree of perfection. Singlehanded he built a screen fence and the various pens over the 75,000 square feet of land comprising his estate. He devised his own methods of improving the hatching and breeding operations and in many instances effected mechanical improvements worthy of patents. He has modestly declined to submit applications for patents on various improvements, particularly an effective weed cutting machine, vital to keeping the areas around the pens free from predatory animals.

Approximately 300 eggs are placed in the hatchery every six or seven days. The hatching period requires about 24 days, which is three more than the number for ordinary baby chicks. The hatching principles are the same, with the eggs being placed on trays in electric incubators. The second step in the operation is the drying room where the baby birds are dried. While in the incubator the eggs are turned over four times a day.

The breeding career for a pheasant starts when it is a day old. The "starting brooder" is the first step and birds are kept there for 10 days to two weeks depending on climatic conditions. They are fed a special type of food. Then comes a transfer to the brooder for six more weeks and advanced type of food. At the end of eight weeks, the bird is ready for the outside rearing pens where it remains until released to the gun clubs.

Feeding pheasants in their various stages of growth is an art in itself. Mr. Martin constantly experiments with new pheasant diets. The so-called starting feed is used for about three weeks, before the growing diet is used until the pheasants leave the rearing pens.

Supplying water for 2000 pheasants is no ordinary operation. It demands thousands of feet of water piping and generators and pumps to keep a steady flow. Birds that are specially selected and produce an annual output of approximately 5,000 eggs. In the lower left is a view of a day-old chick. The average person would have some difficulty in distinguishing it from the average baby chick. The early plumage is somewhat more brilliant but characteristics of the chick are the same. In the lower right is a section of the Martin breeding pens that sprawl over an area of 75,000 square feet and are enclosed with mesh wire. These pens are divided and arranged to house the pheasants in their various stages of development. (Freeman Photos).

Bob Martin Explains Phases of Pheasant Raising

for breeding purposes live outdoors in winter.

"The reason for that is obvious," Mr. Martin says. "If they can't endure the winter weather they certainly won't have much chance when they live the wild life. We breed only sturdy birds and a sturdy pheasant can take anything in the way of weather that Ulster county has to offer."

Bred Show Dogs

Mr. Martin's successful venture in pheasant raising is but one side of this pleasant, self-offering man of the outdoors. He and Mrs. Martin, the former Margaret Clearwater of Kingston, previously operated a widely known kennel and bred some of the finest show dogs in the business.

One of Best

Ulster county skeet and trap shooting experts regard Bob Martin as one of the best shots in Ulster county history. As a member of the now defunct Ulster County Gun Club he established shooting records that still stand. He copped the county title in 1934 and 1936 and shot his first 100 straight targets in 1934. He also compiled 50 straight in skeet.

Double A Classification

In 1934, Mr. Martin registered a percentage of 97.60 in shooting at 2100 registered 16-yard targets throughout New York state. His rating was high enough to qualify him for double A classification in national standings. He received the National Wild Life Restoration award and also a citation from the Wildlife Federation of America.

Expansion in the pheasant raising field would be a simple matter for Mr. Martin, but he says he is perfectly satisfied to continue at his present capacity. Many of his old friends and customers are continually urging him to return to the kennel business, but he has steadfastly refused to do so. Mr. and Mrs. Martin still keep a few dogs on the homestead and are particularly proud of two English setters—one called Jenny is from Sports Princess Pride, one of the famous dogs in American show history and twice winner of national competitions in the show field.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin are known as charming hosts to a large circle of Ulster county friends who like to live close to the soil. They could sit back and rest on their laurels, but Bob Martin isn't built that way. The lure of the outdoors still burns brightly in his heart. He plans no expansion neither does he even dream of retirement.

Watch the pheasant go to after you miss one in the field next fall, but don't get discouraged. Perhaps he was one of those smart birds reared at the Martin farm. They don't fall so easily.

To meet an unprecedented need for surface craft, particularly in the early stages of the war, the Coast Guard acquired a total of approximately 2,100 reserve vessels of various types, practically all of which have been returned to their private owners.

G.I. Button Helps Get Votes; Leaders Uncertain on PAC

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Capital politicians decided today that Tuesday's primaries demonstrated the handy, vote-getting value a G.I. discharge button has for electioneering candidates.

But most of them professed inability to gauge from the primary results how valuable an endorsement of the C.I.O.'s Political Action Committee is going to be at the polls this year.

They had a puzzler in the Alabama campaign where James E. (Big Jim) Folsom, war veteran supported by the C.I.O.-P.A.C., led Lieut. Gov. Handy Ellis into a June 4 runoff for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination—equivalent to election.

Many politicians appeared to believe that Folsom's lead in a five man field could be attributed to his war service, rather than support of the C.I.O. which is just beginning a campaign to organize southern workers.

They noted that veterans who were permitted to vote without paying poll taxes, boosted the ballot total.

As further evidence of this trend, they cited the lead taken by Laurie C. Battle, a former service man and political tyro, over the C.I.O.'s friend Rep. Luther Patrick (D., Ala.). But in another Alabama race, Rep. Albert Rains (D., Ala.) had C.I.O. backing and led former Rep. Joe Starnes.

The C.I.O.-P.A.C. didn't do so well in Ohio, where Senator James W. Huffman won the Democratic renomination over two opponents. One of these was Marvin C. Harrison, an attorney with C.I.O.-P.A.C. backing, who ran third.

Huffman had the support of most of the railroad brotherhoods, which some Ohio politicians said probably was worth more to him than any C.I.O. approval. Indications were, however, that Huffman will get the C.I.O.'s backing when he opposes former Gov. John W. Bricker, the Republican senatorial nominee, in the November election.

Under Observation

Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—Former Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuo-ka has entered an American Army hospital for a medical examination which will decide whether he is in condition to be tried as an accused war criminal. Defense Attorney Kobayashi Kobayashi said Matsuo-ka was suffering from tuberculosis and neuralgia.

Will Tell Children How to Help World Prevent Famine

A special radio broadcast directed to the school children of the nation in connection with President Truman's famine campaign will be carried over the Columbia and Mutual networks Friday from 3 to 3:30 p. m.

WKNY will carry the broadcast locally. The program will outline the part the school children of America can play in the campaign. Throughout the nation's schools many of the children will be gathered in assembly groups to hear details of the program.

The program will be presented by Basil O'Connor, national director of the Red Cross; Dr. Henry Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education; Helen Hayes and Roddy McDowell, child screen star.

Local participation in the program, if any, could not be ascertained today. Mrs. Bertha Connelly, chairman of Kingston's Junior American Red Cross Committee, said that radio facilities are available at the Myron Michael and high school and in some elementary schools.

The program, she said, probably could be heard in the grammar schools, but high school participation would involve delaying buses returning students to various points in the county.

The part Ulster county school children will take in the food preservation campaign will be outlined at a meeting with the general Red Cross committee within the next few days, she said.

Meet on Coal Program
State Capitol, Hartford, Conn., May 9 (AP)—Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin called a group of state officials into conference today to discuss a program of "control and rationing" of coal to cope with the shortages resulting from the strike. Fuel Administrator Bishop von Wetberg, the governor said, had advised him that unless the coal strike was settled by the end of this week "several industries in the state would have to shut down."

New York Youths Are Held for Entering Homes

On April 17, while two New York youths were camping at Tiltson Lake in the town of Shawangunk during the Easter vacation, they apparently became low in provisions and the law enforcement agencies, County Judge John M. Cashin told the F.B.I. Basic-In-Service Training School last night at the court house.

The fourth weekly meeting in the series had been postponed from Tuesday night due to inclement weather. About 70 persons attended.

Judge Cashin outlined the proper procedures to be followed by an officer or enforcement agency in their dealings with a person who makes a complaint. He said they should be courteous, yet firm and never overbearing or overly officious in such negotiations.

It is the officer's responsibility to insure efficient handling of the case in order to inculcate in the public mind a desire to cooperate with the law. This cooperation is extremely important in bringing about law enforcement, he said.

Judge Cashin further stated that witnesses in court should be brief and give the facts and only the facts when under interrogation. They should strive to be factual in order to make the proper impression on the jury.

Another feature of the school was a demonstration on first aid and artificial respiration conducted by Francis Phinney of the New York Telephone Company, and Harold Sanford of the Kingston Fire Department.

Bag Fumigating Firm Incorporates in City
A certificate of incorporation has been filed by the Kingston Bag Fumigating Corporation of Kingston. The corporation is formed for the purpose of fumigating cotton and burlap bags and for the processing of them with gas for the general selling or dealing in bags.

The corporation has 200 shares of no par stock and will operate in a plant adjacent to the Levine Brothers bag plant on Spring street. Morton Levine of 6 Pine Grove avenue, Lawrence, Levine of 120 East Chester street and Lillian Bahl of 92 Broadway are directors of the new corporation. Elmer N. Nathan is attorney for the corporation.

Ike Wants Men
Nanking, May 9 (AP)—General Eisenhower flew into this city today on a mission without ceremony or fanfare today and in a quickly arranged press conference told a questioner emphatically "no" he was not satisfied with the Army's mobilization program. "We need men and they must be provided. Men in the service must not serve an unduly long time. They must have replacements. Something must be done to insure the accomplishment of this job."

Appointment Lags
Washington, May 9 (AP)—An appointment to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court apparently is no nearer than it was a week ago, President Truman had nothing to say about it at a news conference today except that the situation remained the same. Last week he talked of the difficulty of getting capable men for government service.

Missionary to Lecture
Saturday and Sunday at 8 p. m. in the Free Methodist Church, 155 Tremper avenue, the Rev. R. W. Thompson, a missionary on furlough, will speak about the work of the church in the Dominican Republic, and show colored slides of sites he visited while doing missionary work. The services will be open to the public.

Charged in Death
New York, May 9 (AP)—A 22-year-old Brooklyn man was charged with homicide today in the death eight months ago of his infant daughter who, at the time, was believed by authorities to have fallen accidentally from her crib.

About the Folks
N. R. Murphy has returned to his home at Westcliff, N. Y. after visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cosello of Flatbush avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Harbeck, 309 Wall street, have returned from Palm Beach where they were employed at the White Hall Hotel. Mrs. Harbeck is recuperating at her home following an automobile accident on Route 9-W last week.

At the same time, he said that the harvest would not solve the world food crisis. "The efforts of both the individual members of the United Nations as well as the existing organizations," he said, "will be required if the world is not to see a repetition in 1947 of the situation with which we have been, unsuccessfully, attempting to cope during the spring of 1946."

LaGuardia said that the combined food board's May allocation of grain for U.N.R.R.A. was cut from 700,000 to 460,000 long tons, or only 66 per cent of U.N.R.R.A.'s request.

Coffee, chocolate and tea were among the first products advertised in newspapers.

Cashin Gives Talk On Enforcement At Police School

Public relations in law enforcement places an equal responsibility on complainants and the law enforcement agencies, County Judge John M. Cashin told the F.B.I. Basic-In-Service Training School last night at the court house.

Coal Hits Auto Industry

Detroit, May 9 (AP)—Michigan industry, transportation and utilities slowed to a walk today as increasingly tight coal supplies led to toughened conservation measures. Some 85,000 Ford Motor Company employees in the Detroit area were idle as the company closed down its plants for an indefinite period. An estimated 110,000 Ford workers throughout the country will be affected in the shutdown, attributed by the company to coal and parts shortages. Other auto companies reassessed their fuel supplies and General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. indicated they may follow Ford's action shortly.

Will Move to Keep Draft Law Working For 30 Days More

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Senator Gurney (R-S.D.) said today he will offer legislation for a 30-day draft law extension if the Senate appears to take up labor control legislation immediately.

President Truman, at a news conference, said the draft law was in a bad situation. He said he urged its extension as long as possible.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) told reporters he will move, as soon as the Senate completes action on the British loan bill, to take up a committee-approved measure which would extend selective service for a year but limit service of inductees to 18 months. Barkley said he will press his motion against an expected attempt by a group led by Senator Eastland (D-Miss.) to force before the Senate a revised version of the House-approved case strike control bill.

The draft law expires May 15. Gurney said he and other supporters of a full year's extension of the draft would support Barkley's position. If the Senate decides to act on labor legislation, he said he then will offer the 30-day extension to prevent a lapse in the functions of selective service.

House and Senate proposals for draft extension differ widely.

CAA. Engineers Will Confer on Airport Planning

Communities Will Be Visited to Determine Needs, Congressman LeFevre Is Advised

Congressman Jay LeFevre has just been advised by the Civil Aeronautics Administration that when Congress votes money for planning under the Federal Airport Bill, the bill will be sent to the Congress and now awaiting presidential approval. Civil Aeronautics Administration engineers will be sent into the field to confer with state and local authorities for the purpose of determining their local needs. The requirements listed by the C.A.A. in the airport survey report submitted to Congress in November were only tentative and were not based on detailed surveys. It will be necessary to revise these studies in the light of developments of the last year and a half.

The earliest date the Civil Aeronautics Administration can hope to obtain such funds would be July first.

It was emphasized that planning will be decentralized as much as possible into the nine Civil Aeronautics Administration regions, one of which is New York city. In addition there will be district offices, approximately one for every state set up to bring the federal agency closer to the general public.

Meanwhile cities, towns, communities and states are urged to continue their airport planning. Coincident with this surveying of local needs, certain legal actions must be taken in states and cities in all of which the C.A.A. will be directly interested.

Only when these preliminary matters are attended to and funds are appropriated for grants can applications be received and processed by the C.A.A. Regulations and forms for submission of applications will be prepared as soon as possible now that terms of the law are known.

Civil Aeronautics Administration officials estimate that actual work cannot be commenced on any significant number of projects before the next construction season, that is, April of 1947. It will take that much time to accomplish the preliminaries. Interruptions by delegations to Washington pressing for action on specific projects will serve only to slow down progress. The program will be administered largely through the regional offices of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Young Moundsman Fans 15 Batters In Stellar Show

Bob Schatzel's Single in Fifth Spoils First Perfect Game; Morgans and Jay-rich Tonight

Behind the one-hit pitching of Tommy Fisher, Manager Ed Murphy's Grunenwald baseball team went into a first place tie in City League standings Wednesday night by scoring an easy 12 to 0 victory over Perry's Service Station at the municipal stadium.

Fisher was robbed of his perfect game when Bob Schatzel rapped a single through the infield in the fifth frame. Fisher fanned a total of 15 batters.

when Bob Hanley led off with a free ticket to first. Bob advanced to the keyhole on a bunt by Jack Dawkins. For the second straight time, Lay worked Chick for a walk. Both rode home on Ed Murphy's double.

The Bakers added another run in the fourth, six more in the fifth and their final chukker in the top half of the seventh to make it a 12-0 ball game. Buchanan relieved Chick in the sixth and was reached for two hits and one run.

Conservation Law Undergoes Only Few Major 1946 Changes

Albany, May 9—Only a few major changes in the Conservation Law were made by the 1946 Legislature and approved by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, according to a summary outlined today by Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea.

Among the new laws of general interest are those which prohibit the use of automatic firearms for hunting; permit servicemen to fish and hunt (except for deer) until July 1, 1947, without a license; close the trout season, with minor exceptions, the Sunday after Labor Day; permit fishing in the Hudson river south of Poughkeepsie without a license, permit the taking of carp with a shotgun in certain waters approved by the Conservation Department; and stiffen penalties for violations of the deer laws.

Laws Regarding Fish
Trout—A uniform opening and closing for trout, with some exceptions, from the second Saturday in April to the Sunday after Labor Day.
Bass—Permits the taking of black bass of any size and number, from certain trout-inhabited sections of the Schoharie river and Catskill creek and their tributaries, and the Hudson river above Thurman in Warren county.

Game Law Specifications
Servicemen—May fish and hunt, except for deer, without a license until July 1, 1947, if in uniform or have copy of furlough or leave and their service identification tag. Any non-resident serviceman may buy a citizen resident special deer license.
Firearms—Prohibits the use of automatic firearms (those which keep firing on one pull of the trigger) for hunting; also, the use of any auto-loading gun (separate pull of trigger for each shot) containing more than six shells at one time, except 22 rim-fire or a pistol with barrel less than 8 inches; and the use of any silencer.

Deer—Same as last year except as follows: Lengthens season one week in Putnam county, (November 15-30) opens the season in parts of Niagara and Erie counties, November 24-30, except Sunday.
Bear—No change in season but permits sale of flesh of bears raised under license or in other states with similar law, under special permit and when tagged for identification.

Rabbits—Same as last year except extends season in Putnam county to close with adjoining counties, January 31.
Deer Penalties—Provides for violation of deer laws a fine of $100 for the first offense; $200 for second offense during following five years; and $300 or imprisonment in county jail or penitentiary for not less than three nor more than six months for third offense within five years of the previous convictions.

Binghamton, N. Y.—Charlie Hayes, 164½, Detroit, outpointed Eddie Saunders, 159, New York, (8).
Oklahoma City—Buddy Scott, 181, Dallas, knocked out Jackie Parker, 184, Indianapolis, (3).

Oakland, Calif.—Petey Virgin, 131, Schenectady, N. Y., outpointed Benny Calla, 134, Oakland, (10).
Netting—Extends for another year the opening netting seasons in: Chaumont Bay; Lakes Erie and Ontario for taking non-game fish in areas closed to commercial netting; Lake Ontario for netting alewives west of the Oswego-Jefferson county line, any dis-

Boston's Pesky 'Stands Out As Finest in Majors Today

Sparkling Infielder Ties Run Scoring Record; Leads Batting List With .429 Average

By JOE REICHLER (Associated Press Sports Writer)

In a year when the major leagues boast the greatest array of shortstops in the history of baseball, the Boston Red Sox' Johnny Pesky stands out today as probably the finest of them all.

Boosters of Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees, Lou Boudreau of Cleveland, Cecil Travis of Washington, Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox, Vern Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals, Pee Wee Reese of Brooklyn and Eddie Miller of Cincinnati might put up a strong argument for their favorites, but the figures prove Pesky stands all alone at the top of this brilliant cast.

Scores Six Times

The five-foot-nine-inch lad who only a few years ago was only a club house boy out in his native Portland, Ore., and who only last Monday was stopped one hit short of tying the major league record of 12 consecutive hits, tied another standard yesterday when he tallied six times in a 14-10 slugfest, won by Boston over Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox.

Pesky erased the former American League high mark of five held by Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx among others, and joined Mel Ott of the New York Giants as the only modern to accomplish this feat. Guy Hecker holds the all-time high of seven made in 1886 with Louisville of the American Association.

Including the four hits in yesterday's game, Pesky has garnered 39 in 91 times at bat for a .429 average to lead both leagues in batting. He also has scored the most runs—80.

Six Set Team Record

With Ted Williams, Rudy York and Bobby Doerr joining Pesky in the Boston hit parade, the American League leaders slammed four Chicago pitchers for 17 safeties to new club record of 13 consecutive victories, topping their 1939 skein by one.

Southpaw Mickey Harris was hit hard, but had his fifth straight victory saved for him by Dave (Boo) Ferriss, who came to his assistance in the ninth inning.

The New York Yankees remained three and a half lengths behind the Red Sox when they triumphed over the St. Louis Browns 5-1. Spud Chandler joined Harris as the majors' only five game winners by holding the Sewellmen to three hits, two of which came in the ninth when the Browns scored their one run. A three-run homer by Rizzuto was the big blow off left-handed Sam Zolack.

Detroit's Hal Newhouse and Cleveland's Bobby Feller, who with Chandler and Boston's Tex Hughson, are expected to fight it out for the league's pitching leadership, each hurled a masterful game with Newhouse blanking the Washington Senators 1-0 and Feller whipping the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-2.

Tigers Pull Triple Play

Newhouse, sidelined for a week with bone chips in the elbow of his pitching arm, signified his return to normalcy by holding the Nats to two hits in registering his second shutout. A triple play by Feller in the third inning helped Newhouse. With men on first and second, Eddie May caught a liner deflected off Newhouse's bare hand, touched second and threw to first to complete the triple killing.

Feller rebounded from his shelling by the Red Sox last week, holding the A's to six hits and fanning 11 to raise his season's total of strikeouts to 59.

Don Padgett's pinch-hit home run in the 10th inning gave the Brooklyn Dodgers an 8-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and kept the Brooks a half game behind the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals. A base clearing double by Bill Herman highlighted a four-run ninth inning Dodger rally which tied the game and forced it into overtime.

Koslo Bests Pirates

With Dave Koslo besting Pittsburgh's Fritz Ostermuller in an all-lefthanded pitching duel, the New York Giants advanced into a fifth place tie with the Pirates by shading the Bucs, 1-0. With the score 0-0 going into the eighth, Buddy Blatter opened the Giants' half with a triple and scored the lone run of the game when Buddy Kerr lofted a long fly.

Phil Cavarretta, Lou Stringer and Ed Waitkus, led a 14-hit attack with three hits apiece as the Chicago Cubs trampled the Boston Braves, 10-5, to move into third place in the National League. Hank Wyse, 22-game winner last year, gave up nine hits to record his initial triumph of the season.

The St. Louis Cardinals protected their first place lead with a 5-3 triumph over Philadelphia's Phils in a night contest. A four-run fifth inning on three hits and a pair of Phil's miscues enabled Johnny Beazley to gain his second triumph of the season.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Billy Graham, 140, New York, outpointed Pedro Biesca, 139½, Mexico City, (8).
Bangor, Me.—Ralph Walton, 142, Montreal, knocked out Buster Beaupre, 146, Burlington, Vt. (4).

Better Golf By SAM SNEAD

4. Pictured is a golfer making a wood shot in excellent form. Were I to criticize the artist's work at all, I would say the player should be bent just a little bit forward. He's just a little bit upright. And if this player were a beginner I'd say he would do a bit better if he had not taken his club-head below horizontal in this backswing. But if he shoots 85 or better, this is okay. The player who shoots with 85 or upward finds that he gets better control with woods if he limits the backswing to about horizontal. The ball is correctly positioned so that the club-head will take it just after the club-head has passed the low of the arc of the circle and started upward. That is desirable with woods. Or, to say it another way—impact of club-face with ball should, with woods, come just after the club has passed the lowest point of its circle, while with irons, particularly the lofted irons, the club-face should contact the ball before it reaches the low point of the swing and take the divot after the ball is away.

New Leaders Take Posts In Men's Bowling Tourney

Rochester, N. Y., May 9 (AP)—New leaders in the Class C doubles and singles divisions were posted today in the standings of the New York State Men's Bowling Tournament.

Gaining the doubles lead were G. De Vito and F. Reed of Clyde who bowled 1128 last night to become the first Class C tandem to top the 1100 mark in the championship play which ends May 19. A Brockport kegger, L. Millman, chalked up a 611 score putting him in a first place tie in the Class C singles with R. Sullivan and H. Lemp, both of Rochester. Millman rolled games of 200, 210 and 201.

Best team score of the evening's program was turned in by the Cramer Drive Five of Rochester in the Class A competition. The team's 2766 total was well out of the division leaders however.

Providence—Ernie Forte, 146½, Providence, outpointed Al Costa, 148½, Woonsocket, (10).

1,500 Persons Attend Welcome Home Reception for Bowlers

Fine Entertainment Bill Features Gala Program; Work of Committee Praised by All

High tribute was paid to the war veteran bowlers of Kingston Wednesday evening at the municipal auditorium when approximately 1,500 guests, mostly 1500 kieglers, guests and friends joined together in a mammoth program which was featured by eight acts of high class entertainment and brief speeches in honor of the former servicemen. The party, which has been planned for nearly two years, was a huge success in every respect.

Keresman Opens Reception

Following the playing of The Star Spangled Banner, Peter Keresman, general chairman of the Kingston Bowling Association, opened the festivities and proclaimed the reception as an appreciation of the war veterans who have served in the armed forces. In a brief address Mr. Keresman expressed his profound appreciation to all who had joined in the arranging of the party. The Rev. W. Wesley Williams, local clergyman, then gave the invocation during which a one-minute silence was observed in respect to the dead.

Mayor William F. Edmuth appeared next on the program and officially welcomed home all of the veterans. While praising the splendid work of all servicemen and all of their duties, the mayor also paid tribute to the people on the home front during the war years who did so much in bringing victory to this country and our allies.

Dances Are Given

The "Three Buddies" filling in for Morry and Grant, appeared in a number of Harlem dances. One of the most pleasing acts on the program came second when the "Memory Lane Trio" took the stage. The trio was composed of men in the age of 65, 74 and 82. They offered a variety of acts of other years and the audience brought them back for a number of encores.

Eddie Shine, tap dancer, was next and his impersonation of such well-known dancers as Fred Astaire, Ray Bolger and Bill Robinson was well received. Allen and Drake, from the Latin Quarter, gave a satire in ballroom dancing in a routine entitled "Satirically Yours." One of their best presentations was the "Merry Widow Waltz."

Thelma King, a popular Broadway nightclub favorite, was next on the program in a number of satirical dances which were very amusing. Bernie George, who was next to the last on the bill, proved to be the number one hit on the program, with his outstanding portrayal of well-known stars of radio, stage and screen. Mr. George started with an impersonation of a football crowd with Ted Husing at the microphone. Other impersonations were Fred Allen, W. C. Fields, Edward G. Robinson, Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart and Peter Lorre. The five McKenna's, four Irish fellows and a young violinist, completed the program with a series of musical dancing novelties.

Program of Speakers

Following the entertainers, Edwin Dolson spoke to the audience and reviewed briefly the part bowlers played during the war years. Addison Jones, president of the K.B.A., took the rostrum next and praised the work of every serviceman and asked the audience to "keep them in mind always." Mrs. Iola F. Lasher, president of the New York State Women's Bowling Association, tabbed the bowlers' reception "as one of the grandest ever" and said she was very proud of the honor of being at the event. Mrs. Ruth C. Hunzinger, secretary of the New York State Women's Bowling Association, also paid tribute to the bowlers of Kingston who arranged the reception.

William B. Briner, field secretary of the American Bowling Congress opened his address by saying "This is a history making evening in Kingston. Nowhere in our bowling world has anything like this been attempted. Kingston is the leader and on behalf of the A.B.C. I congratulate your chairman and committee for a job well done." ## Maroon to Meet Port Jervis Away Friday Afternoon

Local Team Seeks First DUSO Win of Season; 'Tex' Brown Named Starting Hurler

After being washed out of a game with N.Y.M.A. for the second time, the Kingston High School baseball squad continues its DUSO schedule Friday afternoon when it will meet Port Jervis at the Tri-State city. The Maroon lost out 4-3 to Middletown last week in the stadium opener to inaugurate the 1946 DUSO season.

Port Jervis dropped its league opener last week at Newburgh, 6-3. However, the tri-state nine is reported as strong this year, and this leaves the Maroon something to worry about.

The Raiders have 12 lettermen on their roster this year. Except for the Newburgh encounter, the Port squad has played some pretty good ball.

"Tex" Brown will toe the hill for the locals tomorrow in quest of his second win of the season, his record now being even at one and one. "Tex" wasn't in his best form against Middletown although he yielded only five hits since he walked several men and put himself in hot water many times. Kingston fans are hoping that he will regain the form he showed in the Arlington game when he set the Dutchess boys down with one hit to the tune of a 6-2 win, the two runs coming on errors.

Kingston will likely field the team which has started all season consisting of Bill Crosby, George Glaser, "Red" Gorsline and Mike Banzo in the infield. Chris Lay behind the plate and Ken Lowe, Bobby Roe and Dick Dulin patrolling the outer pastures.

Another important DUSO game this week is the Newburgh-Middletown game on the latter's diamond. These teams are tied for the lead and the winner will take undisputed possession of first place while the loser will be tied with the winner of the Kingston-Port contest for second.

The Maroon nine returns to the municipal stadium Tuesday of next week meeting Poughkeepsie in a non-league affair. This contest should be of great interest to local fans because of the intense rivalry existing between the two schools.

Saints to Practice

An important practice has been called for the members of the St. Mary's softball team Friday night at Block Park. All players are requested to be on hand by 6:15 o'clock.

Briner reviewed the work which has been done during the war by the B.V.L.—bowlers victory legion. He said the organization was created in 1943 with a definite purpose in mind which was to furnish recreational equipment for the boys overseas.

"During the three years of collections from leagues and tournaments," Mr. Briner added, "and with the aid of the special service division of the armed forces, bowlers purchased and shipped overseas 400,000 decks of playing cards, 30,000 cloth bound books, 325,000 pocket size books and 92,254 deep sea fishing kits. Money also was donated to the Infantry Journal "Prisoner of War Fund" and to the U.S.O. and Red Cross." District Attorney Louis Bruhn, past president of the Kingston Bowling Association, was the final speaker and he lauded the efforts of the committee on arrangements in behalf of the G.I. bowlers. Mr. Bruhn ended his short speech by saying "This reception is a concrete example of the brotherhood, sportsmanship and comradeship which is so well displayed in the great game of bowling."

Leo Rollick Rolls First Perfect Game in A.B.C. Tourney

California Kegler Cracks 737 Score for First in Singles; Second in All-Events

A thirty-four-year-old Santa Monica, Cal., traveling salesman rolled the first perfect game of the 43rd annual American Bowling Congress tournament in yesterday's doubles competition in Buffalo, then continued his hot streak to move into first place in the singles and second in the all-events, the Associated Press reported this morning.

The perfect game was rolled by Leo A. Rollick, who helped his mates of the Lio-Da-Mar Bowl team to hop into first place in the five-man division the night before with a score of 3,023, the first 3,000 series of the current meet.

Rollick's hefty kegling gave him a 737 first place in the singles and a 2052 for second place in the all-events. Rollick ousted Ed Ford of Rochester who had formerly held the singles lead with his 734 score. Joe Wilman of Chicago tops the all-events class to date with his 2054, just two pins ahead of the west coast trundler.

The Bromfield-Ritter Mustangs, 990-average team of Denver, Colo., will go into action at the tournament tonight in an attempt to better the 3023 score rolled by the Santa Monica squad earlier this week.

Defends Roxas

Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—General MacArthur disclosed today that Philipines President-Elect Manuel Roxas acted as his contact man in the Philippines during the Japanese occupation. Meeting Roxas, who is en route to Washington with Paul McNutt, U. S. commissioner to the Philippines, at a mid-night stopover, he refuted charges made during the recent Philippines election that Roxas was a collaborationist. As his agent in the island, MacArthur said, Roxas "not only was instrumental in providing me with vital intelligence of the enemy, but was one of the prime factors in the guerrilla movement." He described Roxas as "a staunch patriot and most fitting representative of his people."

Ghost Holds No Terror

Ghost or no ghost, Arthur Clegg, retired London banker, is going to live in his recently purchased Gwydir Castle, a Tudor mansion near Llanwrst, in Wales. He has often slept alone in the gaunt, empty mansion before and now says he will move in and preserve the building for the Welsh nation. "The castle is said to be haunted," says Clegg, "but I have never seen a ghost and that does not disturb me."

HOW TO AVOID BEING "MRS. MARY"

It is curious how persistent the taboo of "Mrs. Mary" pursues a widow who is sensitive to its incorrectness. For example, this letter tells me: "I am a widow of only a few weeks and already I am receiving mail addressed to 'Mrs. Mary Smith' instead of 'Mrs. John Smith.' I do not want to change my name but how can I combat this practice of others? If something isn't done soon, I shall become Mrs. Mary much against my own wishes."

My suggestion is that you put return stickers reading "Mrs. John Smith" on every envelope you send out—business and social both—and that your everyday paper have your full name and address. You might write notes on "informals," which certainly would emphasize the name "Mrs. John Smith." Also, leave your visiting card on those who continue to call you "Mrs. Mary" more often than you otherwise would.

Thanks and Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me the answers to these two questions: (1) If it proper merely to telephone a good friend who could not come to my shower but sent a gift or should a note be written? (2) Is it less correct to invite people to a wedding reception verbally than by engraved invitations?

Answer: (1) A telephone message is quite enough for a shower present. (2) Inviting people to a wedding verbally is not only proper but usually an essential complement since it indicates that the invitations will be very few.

Mother Has to Buy Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is overseas. He has sent me money, asked me to buy his girl an engagement ring and give it to her on a particular day which he mentioned and which evidently has some sentimental significance. Now how shall I proceed? This girl has been to our house once or twice and I have not seen her except then. Shall I go to see her beforehand and ask her to go with me to buy the ring or shall I simply write or telephone and ask her ring size? It's a situation that no one I know of has come up against and I have no one to ask but you. Won't you please answer me as quickly as you can?

Answer: I think the best thing to do is to telephone her and ask her to come to see you about something important. Let her know it is something pleasant so she won't fear bad news. When she comes, tell her what your son has written you and ask her if she will go with you to the jeweler. I would suggest that you go to the jeweler first yourself and have a number of rings set aside at the price your son is expecting to pay and let her choose from among these. Otherwise, she would have no idea what she could choose.

How early are wedding invitations mailed? The answer is found in Mrs. Post's leaflet, "Wedding Invitations and Announcements," obtainable for a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to her in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

County C. E. Board Meets in Stone Ridge

The Stone Ridge Reformed and Stone Ridge Methodist Christian Endeavor Societies entertained the Ulster County C. E. Union at its regular monthly board meeting at the Methodist Church, Monday evening with 22 present.

Wesley Lawrence conducted the opening devotional service with Bible questions.

The Reformed Church of the Comforter C. E. Society volunteered to sponsor the county union paper, "The Beacon" for the June issue. Sunday afternoon services are to be conducted at the City Home by the Ponckhockie Congregational and Stone Ridge C. E. societies, May 12 and June 9, respectively.

Mrs. Nelson H. Lewis, county booster for the New York State C. E. Convention to be held at Silver Bay, July 6-9, reported that 38 registrations had been received. At the last report Ulster county led the state in registrations and the Ponckhockie society has already received an award for reaching its quota.

A report was given on the annual spring institute which was a financial success. The Rev. Robert E. Osman, dean, expressed his appreciation to all who had participated.

A Junior outing for Junior C. E. societies throughout the county is being formulated by a committee under the direction of Beverly Reese, junior superintendent.

The Ulster County Union will sponsor an outdoor Gaelic Service Sunday, June 9. A committee composed of Miss Beverly Reese, chairman, Nelson Lewis, Wesley Lawrence and Mrs. Chester Greene is making plans for this program.

A "proficiency chart" to stimulate interest in and improvement of individual C. E. societies throughout the county was also discussed, as well as tentative plans for the county convention to be held next October.

Following the business session the Stone Ridge societies served refreshments. The next county board meeting will be held at the First Baptist Church, Monday evening, June 3.

Coterie Has Final Meeting.

Plans Annual Outing

Coterie met with Mrs. Raymond Van Valkenburgh Saturday afternoon for its final study meeting of the year. Plans were made for the annual outing to be held May 18 at the Old Fort in New Paltz. Officers for the coming year were installed: Mrs. Charles A. Terwilliger, president; Miss Gladys Secor, vice president; Mrs. Harry C. Smith, secretary and Mrs. Frank Thompson, treasurer.

Captain Miller, a friend of Capt. Helena Clowwater, who is still serving in the Army Nurse Corps, addressed the group briefly on her experiences in China during the early years of the war with Japan.

Mrs. Louis Beers gave the paper for the day on "Jefferson's Little Mountain." In introducing her subject, Mrs. Beers said that Jefferson had two loves in his life, his wife and his home in which he incorporated many of the details found on his trip abroad in France and Italy and many of his own inventions. The two extension wings to the main part of the mansion are built like separate buildings with connecting porches.

One of his ingenious inventions was a clock which could be read from without or within. In connection with it were panels down either side of the wall marked for the days of the week. Weights came down from the mechanism of the clock each day until on Saturday they dropped into the floor. On either side of the dining room panel were small dumb-waiters connected in the paneling which conveyed wines from the cellar. He also made unusual tables one which revolved and another which could be adjusted to any height and also for architectural work or writing. He also created a weather vane whose marking of the direction of the wind could be read from his desk. Jefferson once wrote to a friend, "All my wishes end, where I hope my days will end, at Monticello."

The speaking closed with a social hour during which the hostess served refreshments.

Benjamin Is Indicted For War Swindling

New York, May 9 (AP)—The New York grand jury has indicted William B. Benjamin, 36-year old war manufacturer, accused of swindling factoring companies of $649,000, on 10 counts charging grand larceny and 10 counts charging forgery.

Benjamin, who has told District Attorney Frank S. Hogan that he lost the money gambling, was ordered to appear tomorrow before Judge George L. Donnellan in general sessions court to enter his plea to the indictments.

The former manufacturer of automobile jacks is free under $50,000 bail.

Earlier yesterday, Federal Bankruptcy Referee Irwin Kurtz ordered Ben Kay, described as a bookmaker, to show cause why he should not be restrained from using $102,770.25, on deposit in a branch of the National Safety Bank and Trust Company, which allegedly was transferred to Kay by Benjamin.

Seabee Figures Way To Pump Up Business

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—William J. Voelker, Jr., 21-year-old former Seabee, is doing a lot of pedaling on a bicycle to pump up business in his gasoline filling station in suburban Glenwood.

The brownout order restricting use of electricity hit the Voelker home, with Voelker's father, 54, a machinist being laid off and his station allowed to open four hours a day.

He borrowed his sister's bicycle and removed the rear tire. He took a rubber tired wheel from one of her old wagons, fastened it to the shaft of the gasoline pump, and placed the bicycle on a home-made stand so that the wagon wheel was turned by friction of the rear wheel of the bicycle, operated by pedaling.

As the former Seabee pedals the bicycle running the pump his father puts gasoline into customers' tanks from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m.

PAY AS YOU RIDE

A small down payment and 8 monthly payments buys auto insurance, if you want credit. You need insurance to avoid trouble and possible loss of your driver's license.

For $5.00 you can buy $1,100 fire insurance on furniture in a dwelling in Kingston for 3 years. The policy also covers up to $110 in any place outside the home.

What if someone falls on your sidewalk or is injured on your premises? $5 a year insures a private home against such claims.

Plate glass insurance does not cost much. Ask for an estimate. Ask how my payment plan can help a small business man in need of credit pay for his insurance.

Urges Reappointment

To the Editor:

As returning veterans, it is very disillusioning to find that conditions on the home front have come to such a pass. It has been our good fortune to have had Clarence S. Rowland as a friend for many years. During that time we have had the opportunity to witness the many things he has done, that have served as inspiration to the youth of Kingston. These are times when young people need the moral support that we know Mr. Rowland has always given.

Anyone who has ever engaged in athletic contests, realized the 100 per cent cooperation, fair play and good sportsmanship. These are the traits which we have always known Mr. Rowland to possess and encourage in others.

Some of us had the privilege to attend the High School Athletic Association Banquet on May 4, which was an inspiration to all who attended. It is interesting to note that Mr. Rowland was the originator of these annual banquets.

We would like those that know Mr. Rowland, and what he means to the youth of this city, to take an active part, by writing the mayor urging his reappointment to the Board of Education of the City of Kingston.

Very sincerely,

Parking Meters

May 8th, 1946
Editor, The Freeman
I did not say at any time that I did not approve of parking meters.

I stated and still say that parking meters will not relieve the congested condition of the business streets of Kingston.

I furthermore said and still reaffirm my views that there would be plenty of room to park if the clerks, merchants, insurance men, office workers and others employed in business areas, would park their cars daily in a space arranged for them by merchants and employers in their respective working zones.

I wish to again state that if loading zones were arranged particularly on North Front and Wall streets, that you would absolutely eliminate the present congestion, created by trucks that have to make store deliveries.

The article in May 7th Sunday News bears out the point I brought out in the Public Hearing that many spaces would be occupied by car owners for 3 and

No special program is planned, though music will be provided and refreshments served. Ward entertainment is planned for the bed-patients and a stage show for ambulant patients in the evening.

Leonard and Burns Attend Dinner for Senator Condon

N. Y. State Legislator Tells Patrolmen He'll Always Be Behind Their Interests

From the time he was a youngster and a favorite nephew of his uncle on the Yorker's police force, Senator William J. Condon has been interested in the welfare of law enforcement officers, he told a group of 500 police officers and guests at a testimonial dinner in White Plains last night.

The dinner, arranged as a testimonial for the New York state legislator from Westchester county who introduced the 25-year retirement bill, which was vetoed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, was presided over by two Kingston patrolmen, Edward J. Leonard, past president of the Police Benevolent Association, and James F. Burns, treasurer, also Capt. William J. Geary of the local fire department.

In his speech outlining the reasons why a patrolman should be eligible for retirement after 25 years of public service during which he is forced to undergo rigorous duties and make various sacrifices, Senator Condon told the assembled policemen that he would never fail to champion their cause.

The senator concluded his talk with the remark that being friendly to all uniformed men should be considered a duty to all public officials, and he added that he has always considered their friendship a great asset.

Safety Conference Aims At Cutting Car Accidents

Washington, May 9 (AP)—President Truman's highway safety conference worked today on the technical job of applying the brakes to the nation's accelerating motor death toll.

Eight committees of experts concentrated on as many aspects of the task with the twin purpose of unifying traffic regulations and of bringing public opinion squarely behind a campaign to make the roads safe.

The committee work included studies on accident records, education, enforcement, road engineering, laws and ordinances, motor vehicle administration, organized public support and public information.

Saying that the toll of death and injury already has reached pre-war proportions, President Truman laid down the conference goal yesterday with these words: "The nation cannot afford and will not tolerate this tragic waste of human resources."

Chennault Says Russia Helps China Communists

The former commander of the Flying Tigers in en route from China to Washington after a secret mission to the Orient.

"There have been a good many artillery duels between Chinese Communist and Nationalist (government) forces," Chennault said in an interview here. "Chinese Reds are not getting their stuff from heaven. It is evident it is coming from Russia."

Siamese Twins May Not Be Able to Walk Upright

Portland, Ore., May 9 (AP)—The names of Siamese twins born here to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hulse may be given today if the 32-year-old mother can make her choice for the two blonde girls, the Portland General Hospital reported.

Meanwhile the twins, joined near the base of the spine in a manner that the attending physician said may prevent the girls walking upright if they survive, were taking nourishment normally. They will be three days old at 3 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) today.

Dr. Joseph V. Springer, who made the delivery, reported each child has a separate spinal cord, but they are fused firmly at the lower ends in such a way that until X-ray pictures were examined it was not certain which set of legs belong to which twin. Their heads are at almost opposite ends along a line, Dr. Springer said.

Twin girls, joined facing each other, were born dead at the same hospital in May, 1937, the hospital reported. An American Medical Association spokesman at Chicago said that only 13 cases of Siamese births had been verified between the years of 1100 and 1936. He reported two girls, joined at the abdomen, were born at Coldwater, Ariz., August 26, 1945, died within a few days.

Public Health Work Done in Marletown

High Falls, May 8—The May meeting of the Marletown Public Health Nursing Committee was held in St. Peter's Parish Hall, Stone Ridge, Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Ernest S. Jansen, presiding. A report of the recently held "Tag Day" was given by the chairman, Mrs. Edward Muller, Jr. To date, nearly $100 has been cleared. Mrs. Muller thanked the schools in particular for their splendid cooperation.

Mrs. Coddington, Public Health Nurse, stated that the dental program was getting under way very nicely. Five children have had appointments with the dentist, and more are to go soon. Parents of over 30 children of the ages, five, six and seven, have expressed their desire to avail themselves of this opportunity. Mrs. Coddington is trying to impress upon parents of small children the importance of early care, especially the need of having six-year molars cared for.

After a discussion, a motion was made and carried that letters be sent to the clerk of the town board and the health officer expressing hope that they would do something constructive toward improving conditions of the "dump" located near the village of High Falls. It was felt by the committee that the present condition was detrimental to the community and the town because of appearance, offensive odors and as a breeding place for flies, mosquitoes and rats which infest the neighborhood, also as a menace to transportation along the highway.

Dr. B. F. Mattison of the State Health Department, Kingston, gave a very interesting talk on "Cancer." He told the group that one out of every seven deaths last year was due to cancer and that such deaths might be avoided in approximately 90 per cent of the times had treatment been given early. He deplored the fact that cancer is so painless in its early stages and thus misleads people as to its seriousness.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The doctors use Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting tired, feeling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or constant pressure with urinating and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Don's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Don's Pills are happy pills and will help the 13 million of kidney tobs from out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Don's Pills.

Historical Society Gets Adjutant Bevier's Book

Through the generosity of Warren G. Sherwood of Highland and Miss Edna L. Jacobson of the State Library, the Ulster County Historical Society has been presented with a photostatic copy of the Revolutionary order book of David Bevier, adjutant of the Third Regiment of Ulster county.

After the burning of Kingston, October 16, 1777, regimental headquarters were established at Hurley. The first entry in the orderly book is dated July 20, 1776 and the last October 23, 1777.

David Bevier in 1800 built the house in Marletown now owned by the Historical Society.

City Sewage Plant Might Be Ready Sometime in Fall

structed at a reasonable cost as compared with the cost of similar plants in municipalities comparable to Kingston throughout the country.

Total Cost Not Estimated
Owing to the fact that the W.P.A. records are not available, the city engineer pointed out that it was impossible to estimate the actual amount that had been spent in the construction of the plant and the connecting sewers.

Forced to Build Plant
Under a ruling of the State Health Department some years ago cities and municipalities along the Hudson river, who have been diverting the sewage into the river or tributary streams, were ordered to discontinue the practice by erecting sewage treatment plants.

The greater part of the sewage of Kingston for years has been deposited in the Rondout creek. With the building of the sewage plant here it was also necessary to construct diversion sewers at the points where the sewers emptied into the Rondout creek.

A new sewer line has been built from Wilbur to the plant, and the Broadway and Hasbrouck avenue sewers will be hooked into this new line as soon as the plant is ready for operation.

The diversion chamber under construction on Wilbur avenue is estimated to take care of 60 percent of all the sewage of the city, diverting it from emptying into the Rondout creek, and conveying the sewage to the East Strand plant.

Roosevelt Park Sewer
The Roosevelt Park outfall sewer emptying into the Esopus creek to date has cost the city $94,045.14. This sewer is practically complete with the exception of about 125 feet which will pass under the city's water main, which supply the city with water.

This outfall sewer was started as a W.P.A. project in 1942. It is being built to take care of the drainage for the entire area whenever a storm sewer system is constructed in the Roosevelt Park section.

City Engineer Hallinan said that the construction of this outfall sewer had proven one of the worst headaches ever encountered in the city as in excavating for the sewer the workmen had to work in water that was knee-deep.

To build this sewer has meant the triumph of manpower over nature's obstacles.

Postal Embargo Ordered by U. S.

Packages Must Weigh No More Than 11 Pounds Each

Washington, May 9 (P)—The Post Office Department today ordered an embargo on parcel post shipments weighing more than 11 pounds, with certain exceptions.

The department said the embargo, effective at midnight, was ordered as a result of the coal strike and curtailment of rail service.

Four classes of goods are exempt: Live day-old poultry, seeds, plants, and other nursery stock; eggs, butter and other perishable food products; and medicines, drugs, surgical instruments and surgical dressings.

The department said the normal weight limitation on parcel post is 70 pounds. The size limitation is 100 inches, combined length and girth.

Parcels covered by the embargo will not be accepted for mailing if they weigh more than 11 pounds or if their combined length and girth exceeds 60 inches.

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan said in a statement that he acted at the request of the Office of Defense Transportation and the Association of American Railroads.

Grunenwalds Drub Perrys Behind Fisher's One-Hitter, 12-0

YoungMoundsman Fans 15 Batters In Stellar Show

Bob Schatzel's Single in Fifth Spoils First Perfect Game: Morgans and Jay-rich Tonight

Behind the one-hit pitching of Tommy Fisher, Manager Ed Murphy's Grunenwald baseball team went into a first place tie in City League standings Wednesday night by scoring an easy 12 to 0 victory over Perry's Service Station at the municipal stadium. Fisher was rubbed of his perfect game when Bob Schatzel rapped a single through the infield in the fifth frame, Fisher fanned a total of 15 batters.

Tonight's Game

The final league tilt of the week comes off tonight at the upper ball park when Bill Morgan's club engages the Jayrich team. Game time is slated at 6:15 o'clock.

The Grunenwalds took the lead in the second inning last night by pushing across a single marker without the aid of a hit. A walk to Charlie Lay and Ed Murphy's bunt pushed the veteran fielder to second. On the sacrifice Chick, hurrying for the losers, threw too late to second with both runners going in safe. Successive walks to Schatzel and Albertine forced in the marker.

Three more runs came across for the bakers in the third frame

Boston's Pesky 'Stands Out As Finest in Majors' Today

Sparkling Infielder Ties Run Scoring Record; Leads Batting List With .429 Average

By JOE REICHLER (Associated Press Staff Writer)

In a year when the major leagues boast the greatest array of shortstops in the history of baseball, the Boston Red Sox' Johnny Pesky stands out today as probably the finest of them all.

The Llo-Da-Mar team of Santa Monica, Calif., hit 3023 to take the five-man lead in the American Bowling Congress' championship tournament at Buffalo, N. Y. Standing (left to right) are: Roy Koukal, Johnny Supple and Ernie Soest. Seated (left to right): Leo Rollick and John MacKenzie. 4. Pictured is a golfer making a wood shot in excellent form. Were 1 to criticize our artist's work at all, I would say the player should be bent just a little bit forward. He's just a little bit upright. And if this player were a beginner I'd say he would do a bit better if he had not taken his club-head below horizontal in this backswing. But if he shoots 85 or better, this is okay. The player who shoots with 85 or upward finds that he gets better control with woods if he limits the backswing to about horizontal. The ball is correctly positioned so that the club-head will take it just after the club-head has passed the low of the arc of the circle and started upward. That is desirable with woods. Or, to say it another way—impact of club-face with ball should with woods, come just after the club has passed the lowest point of its circle, while with irons, particularly the lofted irons, the club-face should contact the ball before it reaches the low point of the swing and take the divot after the ball is away. # 1,500 Persons Attend Welcome Home Reception for Bowlers

Features Gala Program;
Work of Committee
Praised by All

High tribute was paid to the war veteran bowlers of Kingston Wednesday evening at the municipal auditorium when approximately 1,500 guests and members of the league gathered in a mammoth program which was featured by eight acts of high class entertainment and brief speeches in honor of the former servicemen.

The party, which has been planned for nearly two years, was a huge success in every respect.

Keresman Opens Reception
Following the playing of The Star Spangled Banner, Peter Keresman, general chairman of the occasion, and past-president of the Kingston Bowling Association, opened the festivities and program in which to honor the veteran bowlers on this first anniversary of V-E Day.

In a brief address, Mr. Keresman expressed his profound appreciation to all who had joined in the arranging of the party. The Rev. W. Wesley Williams, local clergyman, then gave the invocation during which a one-minute of silence was observed in respect to the dead.

Mayor William F. Edelmuht appeared next on the program and he officially welcomed home all of the veterans. While praising the combined work of all servicemen at all of their duties, the mayor also paid tribute to the people on home front during the war years who did so much in bringing victory to this country and our allies.

After the address by the mayor, Chairman Keresman turned over the program to versatile George Jones who acted as master of ceremonies for the eight acts of entertainment which were booked through the Harry Shea agency of New York city.

Dances Are Given
The "Three Buddies" filling in for Morey and Grant, appeared first in a number of Harlem dances. One of the most pleasing acts on the program came second when the "Memory Lane Trio" took the stage.

The trio was composed of men in the age of 65, 74 and 82. They offered a variety of acts of other years and the audience brought them back for a number of encores.

Eddie Shine, tap dancer, was next and his impersonation of such well-known dancers as Fred Astaire, Ray Bolger and Bill Robinson was well received. Allen and Drake, from the Latin Quarter in New York city, gave a satire in ballroom dancing in a number entitled "Satirically Yours."

One of their best presentations was the "Merry Widow Waltz." The popular Broadway nightclub favorite, was next on the program in a number of acrobatic dances which were very pleasing. Bernie George, who was next to the last on the bill, proved to be the number one hit on the program, with his outstanding portrayal of well-known stars of radio, stage and screen. Mr. George started with an impersonation of a football crowd with Ted Husing at the microphone. Others impersonated Fred Allen, W. C. Fields, Edward G. Robinson, Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart and Peter Lorre.

The five McKennas, four Irish children and a young violinist, completed the program with a series of musical dancing novelties.

Program of Speakers
Following the entertainers, Evelyn Dolson spoke to the audience and reviewed briefly the part bowlers played during the war years. Addison Jones, president of the K.B.A., took the rostrum next and praised the work of every serviceman and asked the audience to keep them in mind always.

Mrs. Iola F. Lasher, president of the New York State Women's Bowling Association, tabbed the veteran reception "as one of the greatest ever" and said she was very proud of the honor of being at the event. Mrs. Ruth C. Hunzinger, secretary of the New York State Women's Bowling Association, also paid tribute to the bowlers of Kingston who arranged the reception.

William B. Briner, field secretary of the American Bowling Congress, opened his address by saying "This is a history-making event in the bowling world. Nothing has been attempted. Kingston is the leader and on behalf of the A.B.C. I congratulate your chairman and committee for a job well done." During his address Mr.

Maroon to Meet Port Jervis Away Friday Afternoon

Local Team Seeks First DUSO Win of Season;
"Tex" Brown Named Starting Hurler

After being washed out of a game with N.Y.M.A. for the second time, the Kingston High School baseball squad continues its DUSO schedule Friday afternoon when it will meet Port Jervis at the Tri-State city. The Maroon lost out 4-3 to Middletown last week in the stadium opener to inaugurate the 1946 DUSO season.

Port Jervis dropped its league opener last week at Newburgh, 6-3. However, the tri-state nine is reported as strong this year, and this leaves the Maroon something to worry about.

The Raiders have 12 lettermen on their roster this year. Except for the Newburgh encounter, the Port squad has played some pretty good ball.

"Tex" Brown will toe the hill for the locals tomorrow in quest of his second win of the season, his record now being even at one and one. "Tex" wasn't in his best form against Middletown although he yielded only five hits since he walked several men and put himself in hot water many times. Kingston fans are hoping that he will regain the form he showed in the Arlington game when he set the Dutchess boys down with one hit to the tune of a 6-2 win, the two runs coming on errors.

Kingston will likely field the team which has started all season consisting of Bill Crosby, George Glaser, "Red" Gorsline and Mike Rienza in the infield, Chris Lay behind the plate and Ken Lowe, Bobby Roe and Dick Dulin patrolling the outer pastures.

Another important DUSO game this week is the Newburgh-Middletown game on the latter's diamond. These teams are tied for the lead and the winner will take undisputed possession of first place while the loser will be tied with the winner of the Kingston-Port contest for second.

The Maroon nine returns to the municipal stadium Tuesday of next week meeting Poughkeepsie in a non-league affair. This contest should be of great interest to local fans because of the intense rivalry existing between the two schools.

Saints to Practice
An important practice has been called for the members of the St. Mary's softball team Friday night at Block Park. All players are requested to be on hand by 6:30 o'clock.

Briner reviewed the work which has been done during the war by the B.V.L.—bowlers victory legion. He said the organization was created in 1943 with a definite purpose in mind which was to furnish recreational equipment for the boys overseas.

"During the three years of collections from leagues and tournaments," Mr. Briner added, "and with the aid of the special service division of the armed forces, bowlers purchased and shipped overseas 400,000 decks of playing cards, 30,000 cloth bound books, 325,000 pocket size books and 92,254 deep sea fishing kits. Money also was donated to the Infantry Journal, "Prisoner of War Fund" and to the U.S.O. and Red Cross."

District Attorney Louis Bruhn, past president of the Kingston Bowling Association, was the final speaker and he lauded the efforts of the committee on arrangements in behalf of the G.I. bowlers. Mr. Bruhn ended his short speech by saying "This reception is a concrete example of the brotherhood, sportsmanship and comradeship which is so well displayed in the great game of bowling."

Following the speeches dance music was furnished by Paul Zucca and his orchestra until 1 o'clock.

READY FOR NEW GOLF MEETS

Leo Rollick Rolls First Perfect Game in A.B.C. Tourney

California Kegler Cracks 737 Score for First in Singles; Second in All-Events

A thirty-four-year-old Santa Monica, Cal., traveling salesman rolled the first perfect game of the 43rd annual American Bowling Congress tournament in yesterday's doubles competition in Buffalo, then continued his hot streak to move into first place in the singles and second in the all-events, the Associated Press reported this morning.

The perfect game was rolled by Leo A. Rollick, who helped his mates of the Leo-Da-Mar Bowl team to hop into first place in the five-man division the night before with a score of 3,023, the first 3,000 series of the current meet.

Rollick's hefty kegling gave him a 737 first place in the singles and a 2052 for second place in the all-events. Rollick ousted Ed Ford of Rochester who had formerly held the singles lead with his 734 score. Joe Wilman of Chicago tops the all-events class to date with his 2054, just two pins ahead of the west coast trundler.

The Bromfield-Ritter Mustangs, 990-average team of Denver, Colo., will go into action at the tournament tonight in an attempt to better the 3023 score rolled by the Santa Monica squad earlier this week.

Defends Roxas
Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—General MacArthur disclosed today that Philippine President-Elect Manuel Roxas acted as his contact man in the Philippines during the Japanese occupation. Meeting Roxas, who is en route to Washington with Paul McNutt, U. S. commissioner to the Philippines, at a mid-night stopover, he refused charges made during the recent Philippines election that Roxas was a collaborationist. As his agent in the island, MacArthur said, Roxas "not only was instrumental in providing me with vital intelligence of the enemy, but was one of the prime factors in the guerrilla movement." He described Roxas as "a staunch patriot and most fitting representative of his people."

Benjamin Is Indicted

For War Swindling

New York, May 9 (AP)—The New York grand jury has indicted William B. Benjamin, 36-year-old war manufacturer, accused of swindling factoring companies of $649,000, on 10 counts charging grand larceny and 10 counts charging forgery.

Benjamin, who has told District Attorney Frank S. Hogan that he lost the money gambling, was ordered to appear tomorrow before Judge George L. Donnellan in general sessions court to enter his plea to the indictments.

The former manufacturer of automobile jacks is free under $50,000 bail.

Earlier yesterday, Federal Bankruptcy Referee Irwin Kurtz ordered Ben, described as a bookmaker, to show cause why he should not be restrained from using $102,770.25, on deposit in a branch of the National Safety Bank and Trust Company, which allegedly was transferred to Kay by Benjamin.

Weber Hearing Postponed

The hearing of Joseph Weber of Howland avenue, on a charge of driving while intoxicated, was not held before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush, town of Ulster, last night, having been postponed until May 15 at 7 p. m. Weber, who was arrested by deputy sheriffs after a recent accident on Route 28, is represented by N. LeVan Haver.

Seabee Figures Way

To Pump Up Business

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—William J. Voelker, Jr., 21-year-old former Seabee, is doing a lot of peddling on a bicycle to pump up business in his gasoline filling station in suburban Glenwood.

The brownout order restricting use of electricity hit the Voelker home, with Voelker's father, 54, a machinist being laid off and his station allowed to open four hours a day.

He borrowed his sister's bicycle and removed the rear tire. He took a rubber tired wheel from one of her old wagons, fastened it to the shaft of the gasoline pump, and placed the bicycle on a home-made stand so that the wagon wheel was turned by friction of the rear wheel of the bicycle, operated by pedaling.

As the former Seabee pedals the bicycle running the pump his father puts gasoline into customers' tanks from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m.

PAY AS YOU RIDE

A small down payment and 8 monthly payments buys auto insurance, if you want credit. You need insurance to avoid trouble and possible loss of your driver's license.

For $5.00 you can buy $1,100 fire insurance on furniture in a dwelling in Kingston for 3 years. The policy also covers up to $110 in any place outside the home.

What if someone falls on your sidewalk or is injured on your premises? $5 a year insures a private home against such claims.

Plate glass insurance does not cost much. Ask for an estimate. Ask how my payment plan can help a small business man in need of credit pay for his insurance.

NO MORE back-breaking weed digging! Now you can enjoy a beautiful, weed-free lawn by just mixing 2 tablespoons of WEED-NO-MORE to a gallon of water and spraying it on.

Weeds will soon begin to shrivel and die. WEED-NO-MORE kills dandelion, plantain and other ugly weeds—yet won't injure soil.

Get it today! Just spray on... WEED-NO-MORE.
